Five-Inch Rainfall Floods Parts of City

Boy, 7, Is Injured In Bike Crash

John Schoonmaker Taken to Hospital; Condition Given as Serious

John Schoonmaker, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vivian V. Schoonmaker of 35 Liberty street, was reported in "serious" condition at Benedictine Hospital this morning as the result of injuries sustained when the bicycle he was riding was in collision with a pick-up truck at Liberty street and Clinton avenue at approximately 10:15 a. m.

Dr. John F. Larkin, who was passing, took the child to the Benedictine Hospital.

X-rays Are Taken

It was reported at the hospital that the boy had suffered a "possible fractured skull and possible internal injuries" and that X-rays were being taken to determine the full extent of his injuries.

The pickup truck, owned by the Kingston Packard Company and operated by Benjamin Gulnick of 31 Lindsley avenue, was proceeding northwest on Clinton avenue, police reported, when it was in collision with the bicycle which came out of Liberty street into Clinton avenue.

Officers Edward J. Leonard and Gerald L. Every investigated.

Underpass, Streets, Sewers, Traffic Affected by Downpour

Heavy rains yesterday afternoon and early evening flooded city streets and cellars, bulged sewers and twice flooded the Broadway underpass, and gusty winds blew down scattered limbs, but no major damage was reported. Traffic was slowed.

Approximately five inches of rain fell within a six-hour period, beginning about 1 p. m., according to records in the city engineer's office.

The Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., reported "minor damage" in the city, caused by limbs falling on "secondary wires." Service had to be cut temporarily in certain cases when high water interfered with meter boxes in cellars, it was said. Due to heavy rains a street light at Mill and Ann streets went dead but was repaired within a few minutes.

Ernest A. Steuding, superintendent of the Board of Public Works, said that he had called out eight crews Monday afternoon and that they had worked through most of the night. He said that approximately 125 calls had been received by the BPW during the storm.

Check Kept on School

He said that he had received a call from Superintendent of Education Arthur Laidlaw early Monday afternoon asking that he keep a close check on the George Washington School where waters were rising very rapidly. The situation later became critical and Steuding notified Deputy Chief Harold Sanford of the Kingston Fire Department who investigated and assigned two pumpers to the area.

Underpass Floods Twice

Steuding said that the Broadway underpass had been "flooded twice" and that the banks on each side had been badly washed, filling the roadbed with from two to 18 inches of sand. A grader was dispatched to the underpass about

Kelly Says B'way Underpass Needs Adequate Drains

Acting Mayor Proposes City's Refusal Until Storm Sewer Is Satisfactory

At the completion of his tenure as acting mayor, today, Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly said his recommendation would be that the city refuse to accept the Broadway underpass from the state until the sewer on Kingston's main thoroughfare is adequate to carry off water during heavy rains.

The state is to turn the underpass over to the city after it has been accepted by the New York State Department of Public Works from Lipsett, Inc., the contracting firm that started the project to remove the railroad crossing in 1949.

Should Carry Flow

Although yesterday's rain assumed the proportions of a cloudburst, Kelly said, he was of the opinion that a new sewer system, such as the one at the underpass, should be able to handle an extraordinary flow of water.

"I can see no reason why the city should accept the underpass," he said, "and burden our taxpayers later for sewer reconstruction."

State Engineers Present

Kelly pointed out that state engineers designed the underpass, including the sewer, and emphasized that they were present during the three-year period it took to complete the project to this date.

The alderman-at-large was at city hall most of Monday and witnessed the inconvenience to motorists, several whom were stranded under the railroad bridge prior to the barricading of Broadway by the Department of Public Works.

Few Accidents Occur in County

Extremely Heavy Traffic Slows to Crawl as Rain Glazes Roads

While the nation's death toll stood at more than 500 Ulster county escaped the long Labor Day weekend with no fatalities and but few accidents in which persons were injured.

Locally traffic was slowed to a snail's pace Monday as thousands of vacationland people returned home and the exodus from the mountains was a slow and difficult task. There were numerous minor accidents where wet pavements prevented cars from stopping and rear end collisions were frequent.

State police and Sheriff Schantz reported traffic "very heavy," particularly on Monday but that the weather conditions had slowed traffic to a point where motorists used extreme caution.

Streams at Low Stage

Rain totaled more than five inches but streams were at low stages and no floods were reported except in the town of Saugerties where the Saugerties reservoir overflowed and inundated a connectig road in the Quarryville-Blue Mountain area. The road was closed to traffic for a time but no damage was reported. One family, occupying a summer home in a low spot near the flooded area moved out.

Edwin T. Strong, district manager for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, reported little damage from the heavy rains. There were scattered interruptions of a local nature, prin-

Five Are Killed in Storm; B-36 Ruined at Fort Worth

(By The Associated Press)

Severe wind and rainstorms lashed wide areas of the eastern and southern areas over Labor Day causing millions of dollars damage to property, including several B-36 bombers at Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth, Tex.

At least five persons were killed in the storms.

Winds of 90-mile-an-hour velocity struck near the Carswell Air Force Base, destroying one $3,000,000 B-36 bomber, causing major damage to six others and lesser damage to several others. Several buildings suffered severe damage.

One woman, a civilian was killed by the storm in Fort Worth. In Michigan two persons were killed by lightning as thunderstorms struck the state and two others were reported missing and presumed drowned in Saginaw Bay after their boat capsized.

Damage estimated at $500,000 resulted from a flash flood which struck the small town of Ellicott City, outside Baltimore. The town's main street was littered with broken store fronts, wrecked automobiles and water-logged merchandise as Tiber creek raged through the business and residential sections. Several persons were forced to flee their homes.

Heavy damage was reported yesterday in areas around Baltimore, Washington, and parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, all hit by the tail-end of the season's first hurricane. The hurricane earlier had battered the Carolina coasts.

A new tropical hurricane whirled up in the Atlantic today about 400 miles northeast of Puerto Rico and 1,300 miles southeast

Union Posts Big Reward In Slaying

Executive Unit Reports Integrity in Jeopardy Until Slayer Has Been Caught

Honesty Is Praised

Acropolis Tried to Run Clean Organization, Is Report

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP)—Union comrades of slain labor leader John Acropolis today posted a $25,000 reward for information leading to his killer.

In offering the reward, the executive board of the AFL Teamsters Union's Local 456 declared that "the integrity of bona fide unions stands in jeopardy" until the slayer is caught.

Acropolis, 43, the hard-hitting, college-educated president of Westchester county's Federation of Labor and also of Local 456, was shot in the back of the head in his apartment a week ago.

Parallels ILGWU Action

The union's action in posting the reward paralleled that of the AFL Ladies Garment Workers Union in New York more than a year ago, which offered an equal sum for the killer of union organizer William Lurye.

A partner in a dress firm was accused and tried for the Lurye slaying but was acquitted.

The teamsters group declared in a statement that "the murderer of John Acropolis must be found."

"Everyday this crime remains unsolved the security of the people of Westchester county is threatened," the statement added. "John Acropolis' efforts to run a clean and honest union were opposed by criminal elements. To accomplish their aims Acropolis had to be removed."

Achievements Detailed

Detailing Acropolis' achievements in building the union from 400 to 2,600 members in 10 years and obtaining pace-setting contracts with employers, the union added:

"If the murderer of John Acropolis is not punished, all of these accomplishments and the integrity of bona fide unionism stand in jeopardy."

At the same time, Edward Doyle, the union's secretary treasurer, disputed reports that any discrepancy had developed in the union's sick fund. He said the fund was jointly administered by union and employers, and had been audited and approved only last July 1.

Minor Accidents Occur in Kingston During Holiday

Despite heavy Labor Day weekend traffic only five minor accidents were reported in the city of Kingston Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Three persons received minor injuries in a four-car accident at 11:34 a. m. Monday at Broadway and Delaware avenue, police reported.

A 1951 coupe, driven by Otto Ruecker, 116-29 229th street, St. Albans, going south on Broadway, stopped in traffic, police said and was struck in the rear by a 1951 sedan driven by John Zagaria of 1582 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn. Katherine Ruecker, a passenger, reported to police that she had a headache as the result. Mary Zagaria, 38, was injured about the head and suffered a cut upper lip and Yolanda Giaquinto of 1242 Herkimer street, Brooklyn, suffered head injuries, police stated.

Lip Is Cut

Gets Bump on Head

At 8 p. m. Saturday a 1951 sedan, operated by Vincent Stoll of Van Keuren road, going west on North Front street, was in collision with a 1937 sedan driven by Wallace Dunn, 73 Gage street, going west on the same street, police reported.

Vincent Stoll, four and a half, was treated by a private physician for a bump on the head; police

Eisenhower Blasts Corruption, Scandal

Adlai Fails in Michigan Veteran Writer Declares

Audiences Are Polite but Not Viewed as Enthusiastic for Him

By JACK BELL

Detroit, Sept. 2 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson campaigned in Michigan yesterday and, in the eyes of this reporter, failed by a country mile to equal President Truman's 1948 personal impression on many of the same voters.

No exact comparisons can be drawn, but in retracing the Labor Day route by which the President formally opened his campaign four years ago, the Illinois governor fell far short of Truman's crowds and their responsive enthusiasm.

If there was any real display of enthusiasm for the present party nominee it was in the predominantly Democratic and Polish island of Hamtramck within Detroit. This was the birthplace of the sit-down strike 19 years ago.

Curious and Polite Only

At Grand Rapids and Flint the crowds seemed curious to see Stevenson, listened politely but found no occasion to pound their hands, whoop and holler as they did four years ago for Truman. Stevenson's speech at Pontiac was rained out.

Even in Detroit's Cadillac Square, where organized labor puts on its biggest shows, the crowd was small.

The crowd estimates ranged from 15,000 made by three police inspectors to 40,000 made by Deputy Police Superintendent Kennedy Lawrence. The total crowds in Michigan were far below the estimated 1,000,000 who turned out for President Truman in 1948.

Few men can match the presidential crowd draw, even a major aspirant for the job. There is something about an American that makes him want to see a president in person, even if he's looked him over a hundred times on TV and in news reels.

Talks Over Heads

There is plain evidence that Stevenson deliberately talked over the heads of many who listened to him in person.

Wilson Wyatt, the governor's campaign manager, said the Detroit speech, which dealt with a proposed new law to supplant the Taft-Hartley Act, was beamed at national consumption through television.

It was an effort, Wyatt said, to lay down in compact form the foundations for the labor issues the candidate will touch upon time and again before November.

Time will tell whether the TV audience appreciated the substance of what it got.

Lays Political Egg

But the more immediate problem for the Stevenson camp lies in the curious fact that the high-level, philosphical type of speech

Sen. Quinn Dies In New York: Was Minority Leader

His Death Makes Wicks Senior Member of Senate—Wicks Pays Tribute

ELMER F. QUINN

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Democrat State Senator Minority Leader Elmer F. Quinn, senior member of the Senate, died today in St. Luke's Hospital.

Quinn, 57, lived in New York with his mother.

Quinn, who had served 27 years in the Senate, was elected at a special election to succeed James J. Walker when the latter became mayor of New York in 1925.

(Senator Quinn's death makes Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, senior member of the Senate. Senator Wicks has served 26 years. Next to Senator Wicks is Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh, with 22 years of service.)

Was Born in New York

Born in New York and educated in the public schools here, he was a graduate of Fordham University and a practicing attorney.

He entered the hospital last Thursday. The nature of his ailment was not disclosed.

Quinn served from the 18th District, which includes the Second, Fourth and Sixth Assembly Districts of New York county.

He was unanimously chosen Senate minority leader by the Democratic party on Jan. 2, 1945, and was reelected to the position in 1947, 1949 and 1951.

Member of Rules Group

He was a member of the important rules committee in the Senate and an ex-officio member of all other committees.

He was co-author of the Ives-Quinn Law against discrimination in employment, enacted in 1945, with Republican Lewis W. Olliffe of Brooklyn, he sponsored in 1948 a law prohibiting non-denominational colleges in the state from discriminating against candidates for admission because of race, creed or color.

Quinn was a convivial bachelor. He enjoyed widespread popularity among his Senate colleagues, Republicans as well as Democrats.

Quinn had been ailing throughout 1951. Last March 5, during the legislative session, he was admitted to Albany Hospital with what a hospital spokesman called an "abdominal ailment of some severity." He remained there two months and returned periodically for observation.

Quinn convalesced at Saratoga Springs during the summer. Late last month his condition grew

Stevenson Pleased With Michigan Tour

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP) — Gov. Adlai Stevenson said today he is "very well satisfied" with the results of his sweep through the industrial centers of Michigan, and the reactions to his stated position on the whole field of labor-management legislation.

Back in his office today, Stevenson started work on his next major effort—a statement of policy on a farm program.

He leaves Friday for Denver, then goes to the National Plowing Contest at Kasson, Minn., where he is expected to speak as fully on agriculture as he did yesterday on labor.

More Than 500 Killed On Holiday

By The Associated Press

More than 500 persons lost their lives in accidents over the Labor Day holiday but the toll was far below the record of 658 violent deaths a year ago.

The death toll for the holiday, the last long weekend of the summer season, was 524.

Accidents on the highways, as usual, took the heaviest toll, with 403 killed in traffic mishaps. Fifty two persons drowned and 69 others lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents.

The traffic total compared to last year's record 461 deaths. It was below the 480 deaths estimated for the three-day holiday by the national safety council.

The accident toll covered the period from 6 a. m. Friday to midnight Monday (local time). The safety council reported that thus far in 1952 there have been 94 traffic deaths every 24 hours. This includes deaths occurring from injuries days, weeks or months after the accidents.

In New York state, the holiday deaths totalled 37. This included 23 killed in traffic accidents, four drownings and 10 from miscellaneous causes.

Woman Is Killed, Three Are Hurt

Catskill, Sept 2 (AP)—A Cheshire, Conn., woman was injured fatally and three Cheshire residents were injured seriously early today when their car and a dairy truck collided on Route 145 in the nearby town of Cairo.

Mrs. Ellen Williams, 56, died within a half hour of the accident, state police said.

Mrs. Williams' husband, Edward T. Williams, 56, Cheshire tax collector, was reported in "only fair condition" at Greene County Memorial Hospital. The hospital said Russell Nichols, 55, was in "critical" condition and his wife, Sophie, 52, in "serious" condition.

Police said the car was trying to pass an unidentified vehicle when it struck the truck head on.

President Seems Satisfied With Stevenson's Program

Aboard Truman train, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Truman gave every outward indication today that he is satisfied with Adlai Stevenson's campaign program as he intensified his whistle stop stumping for the Democratic nominee.

And his disclosure of a joint strategy for speechmaking supported claims of his aides that there has been full consultation and coordination between the President and nominee on what they will say.

Truman demonstrated his ability to stir up campaign crowds again last night at Milwaukee when he was interrupted 46 times at a labor rally where he described Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the "lonely, captive candidate" of Republican "special interests" trying to "hide behind a new face."

He called for the defeat of Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and replied to GOP demands for a change at Washington by saying:

"It is time for a change from the big lie—from the brazen Republican efforts to falsify history, to smear and ruin innocent individuals, to trample the basic liberties of American people."

Truman promised more of the same kind of "give 'em hell" assaults today at Cincinnati and in five back platform talks in West Virginia.

Reports out of Springfield, Ill., that the Illinois governor would outline his views on the Taft-Hartley Act without consultation with Truman came as a surprise to the President's researchers.

They said they saw in advance rough copies of early drafts of Stevenson's Detroit speech yesterday and that Stevenson's staff was filled in on what Truman said at Milwaukee.

Wilson Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, had told reporters Sunday: "We have had no contact

Cleanup Is Needed, He Tells South

General Demands Full Clean-out of Bosses in Washington—'Too Long in Power'

Says 'Rebels Yell'

Capital Bigwigs Hear Shouts, Don't Like It, He Says

Atlanta, Sept. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today called the Democratic administration a mess of corruption and scandal and demanded "a wholesale clean-out of the political bosses in Washington."

The Republican presidential nominee cut loose at the Truman regime in earnest for the first time in an address prepared to open a flying southern campaign tour.

"A 'refreshening' is not what we need," said Eisenhower.

"A face-lifting job won't do it either," he added. "What the Washington mess must have is the full treatment."

Eisenhower said corruption and scandal were brewed by "too many men who are too small for their jobs, too big for their breeches and too long in power."

He said a wholesale clean-out was needed to restore decency, honesty and integrity to the national government.

"This Washington mess," he said, "is not a one-agency mess or a one-bureau mess or a one-department mess—it is a top-to-bottom mess."

Fulfills Promise

The tone of the speech fulfilled advance word from his regional campaign headquarters in New York that he would "pull no punches" on his Dixie trip.

Some of his warmest admirers had complained that Eisenhower's campaigning was too soft. The general' aides said, however, that he had planned deliberately not to fire his ammunition too soon.

Eisenhower named no names in his prepared text.

He said the cost of the "Washington mess" was being taken out of every American through higher taxes, higher prices and by "cutting down the value of every dollar you have put away for the future."

The general asserted:

"If you are as sick and tired of all this as I am; if you are as tired as I am of picking up your newspaper every morning and reading about a fresh government scandal, then let's get together and restore decency and honesty and integrity in the nation's capital."

Counting Votes

In his bid for southern support, the Republican nominee said some Democratic spokesmen were "counting the votes of the south ahead of time along with the cemetery tomb stones and the vacant lots that they carry in the election rolls in some of the cities they run up north."

Eisenhower said he had been hearing "the wild exultance of the rebel yell."

"They are hearing it in Washington, too," he said. "And they don't like it. They like voters who follow orders."

The GOP nominee said he himself likes rebel yells.

"I heard them all the way from North Africa to Central Germany," said Eisenhower, the allied wartime commander in Europe. "All along that road to victory, they meant an end to Nazi tyranny. In this campaign, they mean an end to the mess in Washington."

Eisenhower said he was not predicting the outcome of the election Nov. 4, but he pledged that, whatever his future status, he would not rest until "the peddlers of privilege and the destroyers of decency are banished from the nation's house."

Promises More Artillery

Despite heavy Labor Day weekend traffic only five minor accidents were reported in the city of Kingston Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Three persons received minor injuries in a four-car accident at 11:34 a. m. Monday at Broadway and Delaware avenue, police reported.

A 1951 coupe, driven by Otto Ruecker, 116-29 229th street, St. Albans, going south on Broadway, stopped in traffic, police said and was struck in the rear by a 1951 sedan driven by John Zagaria of 1582 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn. Katherine Ruecker, a passenger, reported to police that she had a headache as the result. Mary Zagaria, 38, was injured about the head and suffered a cut upper lip and Yolanda Giaquinto of 1242 Herkimer street, Brooklyn, suffered head injuries, police stated.

Lip Is Cut

Gets Bump on Head

At 8 p. m. Saturday a 1951 sedan, operated by Vincent Stoll of Van Keuren road, going west on North Front street, was in collision with a 1937 sedan driven by Wallace Dunn, 73 Gage street, going west on the same street, police reported.

Vincent Stoll, four and a half, was treated by a private physician for a bump on the head; police

By JACK BELL

Detroit, Sept. 2 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson campaigned in Michigan yesterday and, in the eyes of this reporter, failed by a country mile to equal President Truman's 1948 personal impression on many of the same voters.

No exact comparisons can be drawn, but in retracing the Labor Day route by which the President formally opened his campaign four years ago, the Illinois governor fell far short of Truman's crowds and their responsive enthusiasm.

If there was any real display of enthusiasm for the present party nominee it was in the predominantly Democratic and Polish island of Hamtramck within Detroit. This was the birthplace of the sit-down strike 19 years ago.

Curious and Polite Only

At Grand Rapids and Flint the crowds seemed curious to see Stevenson, listened politely but found no occasion to pound their hands, whoop and holler as they did four years ago for Truman. Stevenson's speech at Pontiac was rained out.

Even in Detroit's Cadillac Square, where organized labor puts on its biggest shows, the crowd was small.

The crowd estimates ranged from 15,000 made by three police inspectors to 40,000 made by Deputy Police Superintendent Kennedy Lawrence. The total crowds in Michigan were far below the estimated 1,000,000 who turned out for President Truman in 1948.

Few men can match the presidential crowd draw, even a major aspirant for the job. There is something about an American that makes him want to see a president in person, even if he's looked him over a hundred times on TV and in news reels.

Talks Over Heads

There is plain evidence that Stevenson deliberately talked over the heads of many who listened to him in person.

Wilson Wyatt, the governor's campaign manager, said the Detroit speech, which dealt with a proposed new law to supplant the Taft-Hartley Act, was beamed at national consumption through television.

It was an effort, Wyatt said, to lay down in compact form the foundations for the labor issues the candidate will touch upon time and again before November.

Time will tell whether the TV audience appreciated the substance of what it got.

Lays Political Egg

But the more immediate problem for the Stevenson camp lies in the curious fact that the high-level, philosphical type of speech

Sen. Quinn Dies In New York: Was Minority Leader

His Death Makes Wicks Senior Member of Senate—Wicks Pays Tribute

ELMER F. QUINN

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Democrat State Senator Minority Leader Elmer F. Quinn, senior member of the Senate, died today in St. Luke's Hospital.

Quinn, 57, lived in New York with his mother.

Quinn, who had served 27 years in the Senate, was elected at a special election to succeed James J. Walker when the latter became mayor of New York in 1925.

(Senator Quinn's death makes Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, senior member of the Senate. Senator Wicks has served 26 years. Next to Senator Wicks is Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh, with 22 years of service.)

Was Born in New York

Born in New York and educated in the public schools here, he was a graduate of Fordham University and a practicing attorney.

He entered the hospital last Thursday. The nature of his ailment was not disclosed.

Quinn served from the 18th District, which includes the Second, Fourth and Sixth Assembly Districts of New York county.

He was unanimously chosen Senate minority leader by the Democratic party on Jan. 2, 1945, and was reelected to the position in 1947, 1949 and 1951.

Member of Rules Group

He was a member of the important rules committee in the Senate and an ex-officio member of all other committees.

He was co-author of the Ives-Quinn Law against discrimination in employment, enacted in 1945, with Republican Lewis W. Olliffe of Brooklyn, he sponsored in 1948 a law prohibiting non-denominational colleges in the state from discriminating against candidates for admission because of race, creed or color.

Quinn was a convivial bachelor. He enjoyed widespread popularity among his Senate colleagues, Republicans as well as Democrats.

Quinn had been ailing throughout 1951. Last March 5, during the legislative session, he was admitted to Albany Hospital with what a hospital spokesman called an "abdominal ailment of some severity." He remained there two months and returned periodically for observation.

Stevenson Pleased With Michigan Tour

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP) — Gov. Adlai Stevenson said today he is "very well satisfied" with the results of his sweep through the industrial centers of Michigan, and the reactions to his stated position on the whole field of labor-management legislation.

Back in his office today, Stevenson started work on his next major effort—a statement of policy on a farm program.

He leaves Friday for Denver, then goes to the National Plowing Contest at Kasson, Minn., where he is expected to speak as fully on agriculture as he did yesterday on labor.

More Than 500 Killed On Holiday

By The Associated Press

More than 500 persons lost their lives in accidents over the Labor Day holiday but the toll was far below the record of 658 violent deaths a year ago.

The death toll for the holiday, the last long weekend of the summer season, was 524.

Accidents on the highways, as usual, took the heaviest toll, with 403 killed in traffic mishaps. Fifty two persons drowned and 69 others lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents.

The traffic total compared to last year's record 461 deaths. It was below the 480 deaths estimated for the three-day holiday by the national safety council.

The accident toll covered the period from 6 a. m. Friday to midnight Monday (local time). The safety council reported that thus far in 1952 there have been 94 traffic deaths every 24 hours. This includes deaths occurring from injuries days, weeks or months after the accidents.

In New York state, the holiday deaths totalled 37. This included 23 killed in traffic accidents, four drownings and 10 from miscellaneous causes.

Woman Is Killed, Three Are Hurt

Catskill, Sept 2 (AP)—A Cheshire, Conn., woman was injured fatally and three Cheshire residents were injured seriously early today when their car and a dairy truck collided on Route 145 in the nearby town of Cairo.

Mrs. Ellen Williams, 56, died within a half hour of the accident, state police said.

Mrs. Williams' husband, Edward T. Williams, 56, Cheshire tax collector, was reported in "only fair condition" at Greene County Memorial Hospital. The hospital said Russell Nichols, 55, was in "critical" condition and his wife, Sophie, 52, in "serious" condition.

Police said the car was trying to pass an unidentified vehicle when it struck the truck head on.

President Seems Satisfied With Stevenson's Program

Aboard Truman train, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Truman gave every outward indication today that he is satisfied with Adlai Stevenson's campaign program as he intensified his whistle stop stumping for the Democratic nominee.

And his disclosure of a joint strategy for speechmaking supported claims of his aides that there has been full consultation and coordination between the President and nominee on what they will say.

Truman demonstrated his ability to stir up campaign crowds again last night at Milwaukee when he was interrupted 46 times at a labor rally where he described Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the "lonely, captive candidate" of Republican "special interests" trying to "hide behind a new face."

He called for the defeat of Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and replied to GOP demands for a change at Washington by saying:

"It is time for a change from the big lie—from the brazen Republican efforts to falsify history, to smear and ruin innocent individuals, to trample the basic liberties of American people."

Truman promised more of the same kind of "give 'em hell" assaults today at Cincinnati and in five back platform talks in West Virginia.

Reports out of Springfield, Ill., that the Illinois governor would outline his views on the Taft-Hartley Act without consultation with Truman came as a surprise to the President's researchers.

They said they saw in advance rough copies of early drafts of Stevenson's Detroit speech yesterday and that Stevenson's staff was filled in on what Truman said at Milwaukee.

Wilson Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, had told reporters Sunday: "We have had no contact

General Demands Full Clean-out of Bosses in Washington—'Too Long in Power'

Says 'Rebels Yell'

Capital Bigwigs Hear Shouts, Don't Like It, He Says

Atlanta, Sept. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today called the Democratic administration a mess of corruption and scandal and demanded "a wholesale clean-out of the political bosses in Washington."

The Republican presidential nominee cut loose at the Truman regime in earnest for the first time in an address prepared to open a flying southern campaign tour.

"A 'refreshening' is not what we need," said Eisenhower.

"A face-lifting job won't do it either," he added. "What the Washington mess must have is the full treatment."

Eisenhower said corruption and scandal were brewed by "too many men who are too small for their jobs, too big for their breeches and too long in power."

He said a wholesale clean-out was needed to restore decency, honesty and integrity to the national government.

"This Washington mess," he said, "is not a one-agency mess or a one-bureau mess or a one-department mess—it is a top-to-bottom mess."

Fulfills Promise

The tone of the speech fulfilled advance word from his regional campaign headquarters in New York that he would "pull no punches" on his Dixie trip.

Some of his warmest admirers had complained that Eisenhower's campaigning was too soft. The general' aides said, however, that he had planned deliberately not to fire his ammunition too soon.

Eisenhower named no names in his prepared text.

He said the cost of the "Washington mess" was being taken out of every American through higher taxes, higher prices and by "cutting down the value of every dollar you have put away for the future."

The general asserted:

"If you are as sick and tired of all this as I am; if you are as tired as I am of picking up your newspaper every morning and reading about a fresh government scandal, then let's get together and restore decency and honesty and integrity in the nation's capital."

Counting Votes

In his bid for southern support, the Republican nominee said some Democratic spokesmen were "counting the votes of the south ahead of time along with the cemetery tomb stones and the vacant lots that they carry in the election rolls in some of the cities they run up north."

Eisenhower said he had been hearing "the wild exultance of the rebel yell."

"They are hearing it in Washington, too," he said. "And they don't like it. They like voters who follow orders."

The GOP nominee said he himself likes rebel yells.

"I heard them all the way from North Africa to Central Germany," said Eisenhower, the allied wartime commander in Europe. "All along that road to victory, they meant an end to Nazi tyranny. In this campaign, they mean an end to the mess in Washington."

Eisenhower said he was not predicting the outcome of the election Nov. 4, but he pledged that, whatever his future status, he would not rest until "the peddlers of privilege and the destroyers of decency are banished from the nation's house."

Promises More Artillery

In assailing the administration in his speech here, the general

Two Boarders Are Injured When Bicycle Brake Fails

Two young men, boarders at the Yachnes Hotel at Granite, were badly injured at 11 o'clock this morning when the brake on their bicycle failed as they came down the Minnewaska Trail to Kerhonkson village. Both were brought to the Kingston Hospital by the Humiston Ambulance service.

Deputy Sheriff Irving Gilman of Kerhonkson, who investigated the accident, reported the cycle was being operated by Murry Apelbaum, 20, of 153 Hewes street, Brooklyn, and riding on the handlebar was Paul Steinberg, 20, of 222 Hewes street, Brooklyn.

Loses Control of Cycle

The operator lost control of the cycle as it came down the steep hill entering Kerhonkson and the cycle crashed head on into a guard rail which was erected some time ago to protect property at the foot of the hill.

Both men were thrown over the guard rail and into a narrow driveway between the Brown drug store and the Seigel grocery store. Apelbaum sustained a broken leg and his condition was given as fair. Steinberg was reported to have a chest injury and was reported by the hospital in poor condition.

Deputy Sheriff Gilman notified the parents of Steinberg and they left immediately for Kingston.

This is the fourth serious accident which has taken place at this location since the first of the year. The grade leading into Kerhonkson is very steep as one approaches Kerhonkson along routes 44-55.

Completes Big Hike

London, Sept. 2 (AP)—George Dixon, 39-year-old welder, completed a 365-mile nonstop walk from Berwick-on-Tweed to St. Paul's Cathedral today in 93 hours 42 minutes. Unshaven, heavy-lidded, footsore and hungry, Dixon plumped down on the cathedral steps and said: "I am here. Thank the Lord." Asked by newsmen what inspired his sleepless tramp from the Scottish border town, Dixon replied: "I just wanted to see if I could."

Fish Would Oppose

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Former Republican, Congressman Hamilton Fish said today he will circulate petitions to run as a third party candidate for U. S. Senator from New York. Although he may not use the name of the new American party, Fish said he will be the standard bearer for the new ccalition proposed by Col. Robert R. McCormick, Chicago publisher.

worse and he returned to New York.

In Line for Leadership

In line for the Democratic leadership of the Senate through seniority, are Sen. Francis J. Mahoney of Manhattan and Sen. Samuel L. Greenberg of Brooklyn. Both have served in the Senate since 1943.

Republican Leader Arthur H. Wicks of the Senate said he was "deeply grieved to learn of the death of my dear friend and colleague of many, many years, Elmer Quinn."

Wicks said in a statement that Quinn was a "man of great heart, understanding and courage."

The Senate and the state of New York have lost a true public servant, who, although always a staunch advocate of the things in which he believed, was never too blindly partisan to extend a helping hand to anyone whom he could assist," Wicks added.

The majority leader appointed the entire Senate, its presiding officer, Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore, and Senate Secretary William S. King as a delegation to attend the funeral.

Two Boarders Are Injured When Bicycle Brake Fails

Two young men, boarders at the Yachnes Hotel at Granite, were badly injured at 11 o'clock this morning when the brake on their bicycle failed as they came down the Minnewaska Trail to Kerhonkson village. Both were brought to the Kingston Hospital by the Humiston Ambulance service.

Deputy Sheriff Irving Gilman of Kerhonkson, who investigated the accident, reported the cycle was being operated by Murry Apelbaum, 20, of 153 Hewes street, Brooklyn, and riding on the handlebar was Paul Steinberg, 20, of 222 Hewes street, Brooklyn.

Loses Control of Cycle

The operator lost control of the cycle as it came down the steep hill entering Kerhonkson and the cycle crashed head on into a guard rail which was erected some time ago to protect property at the foot of the hill.

Both men were thrown over the guard rail and into a narrow driveway between the Brown drug store and the Seigel grocery store. Apelbaum sustained a broken leg and his condition was given as fair. Steinberg was reported to have a chest injury and was reported by the hospital in poor condition.

Deputy Sheriff Gilman notified the parents of Steinberg and they left immediately for Kingston.

This is the fourth serious accident which has taken place at this location since the first of the year. The grade leading into Kerhonkson is very steep as one approaches Kerhonkson along routes 44-55.

Asked by newsmen what inspired his sleepless tramp from the Scottish border town, Dixon replied: "I just wanted to see if I could."

worse and he returned to New York.

In Line for Leadership

In line for the Democratic leadership of the Senate through seniority, are Sen. Francis J. Mahoney of Manhattan and Sen. Samuel L. Greenberg of Brooklyn. Both have served in the Senate since 1943.

Republican Leader Arthur H. Wicks of the Senate said he was "deeply grieved to learn of the death of my dear friend and colleague of many, many years, Elmer Quinn."

Wicks said in a statement that Quinn was a "man of great heart, understanding and courage."

The Senate and the state of New York have lost a true public servant, who, although always a staunch advocate of the things in which he believed, was never too blindly partisan to extend a helping hand to anyone whom he could assist," Wicks added.

The majority leader appointed the entire Senate, its presiding officer, Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore, and Senate Secretary William S. King as a delegation to attend the funeral.

Ten thousand men, women and children of all faiths are expected to attend the rally at the municipal stadium Sunday, Sept. 28, as part of the Family Rosary Crusade of the Catholic Archdiocese of New York.

There will be no charge to attend the rally which will be addressed by Father Patrick Peyton, founder of the international crusade to restore the Rosary to the home of the world. In case of rain the rally will be held in the city auditorium.

The crusade, bearing the slogan The Family That Prays Together, Stays Together, will actually begin September 14 and will continue until October 12. Rallies have been scheduled for Newburgh on September 21, Kingston on September 28, Poughkeepsie on October 5, Staten Island on October 10 and the Polo grounds on October 12.

At 4 p. m., Friday, September 12, there will be a meeting of all religious teachers of Ulster and Sullivan counties at St. Mary's School Hall, Kingston, at which time Father Peyton will speak. At 8 p. m., he will address a meeting of all committees and key laymen from the two counties.

Msgr. Drury Honorary Chairman

The Rt. Rev. Martin J. Drury, PR, VF, dean of Ulster and Sullican counties, is serving as honorary chairman of the crusade in this area.

Serving as general chairman is the Rev. John Simmons of St. Joseph's Church, Kingston. Assisting Father Simmons are the following: The Rev. William B. Duggan of St. Mary's Church Ellenville, assistant chairman; the Rev. Joseph A. Geis of St. Peter's Church, Kingston, secretary-treasurer; the Rev. John F. Kelly of St. Peter's Church Rosendale, program chairman; the Rev. Joseph J. O'Rourke of the Holy Name Church, Kingston, grounds chairman; the Rev. James L. Riordan of St. John's Church, West Hurley, stage chairman; the Rev. James J. Dunnigan of St. Ann's Church, Sawkill, usher committee;; the Rev. Joseph Wall, CSSR, of the Sacred Heart Church, Esopus, music chairman, and the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly of St. Mary's Church, Kingston, publicity chairman.

The general committee will be composed of all pastors of Ulster and Sullivan counties, it was said.

Five-Week Crusade

Diocesan crusades are intensive five-week campaigns for the restoration of the family rosary in every home of an entire diocese or group of dioceses for the achevement of which the bishop, priests and people work together.

During the final week an army of laymen visits every Catholic home to secure from each member of the family a promise to recite the daily family rosary.

It was pointed out that in the first diocesan crusade in London, Ontario, in 1948, 90,000 pledges were obtained, 90 per cent of the entire dioceses. Since that time over 5,500,000 pledges have been obtained in crusades held from coast to coast in Canada, Alaska, England and in 12 of the 48 United States and the District of Columbia.

Since the Rosary has always been the traditional Catholic family prayer, each Catholic family will be asked to pledge in writing its intention to say the Rosary every day. Non-Catholics are urged to adopt as their family prayers whatever prayers they deem suitable.

In every parish an organization of laymen will be set up. These laymen, numbering approximately 50,000, will visit every Catholic home during the final week of the crusade to seek the Rosary pledge. Father Peyton has estimated that as many as 1,000,000 will sign the pledge in the Archdiocese of New York.

The pledge is as follows:

"To obtain peace for the nations of the world and the love and protection of God and Mary for myself and the members of my family, I promise to recite the daily family Rosary."

Founded Crusade in 1942

Father Peyton who, in 1942, began his crusade to restore the family Rosary to the home, points out that "absolutely necessary is a return to the spiritual and moral principles which were the strength of family life in the past. As a means of doing this nothing could be more effective or more fitting than the universal restoration of the practice of daily family prayer. No family which prays to God each day, fervently and confidently and as a group, can fail to receive the blessing of heaven, nor fail to realize better the bond of of love and understanding which should unite its members in the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God."

A year before his ordination, Father Peyton was stricken with a disease which threatened to incapacitate him for life. He has said that when his prayers to Mary, the mother of Christ, were answered through his restoration to health, he determined to repay the debt he felt he had incurred by spending his life telling people about the power of the Mother of God—especially the power of her Rosary which he had recited with his family every evening since childhood.

In 1942 he began his campaign to restore the Rosary to the home by writing a letter to a bishop. He had to borrow the stamp to mail it, but the reply was enthusiastic and the crusade was launched. For three years Father Peyton spoke wherever there was an audience to listen to him, in churches, schools and auditoriums, to young and old, to church societies and to civic and business organizations. In Albany he opened a Family Rosary office to handle inquiries which began to pour in from all over the world.

Produced Family Theatre

A weekly Family Rosary program over a local radio station set the pattern for the first nationwide Rosary broadcast on Mother's Day, May 13, 1945. The tremendous response from listeners of every faith convinced the Mutual Network (donors of the time) that the recitation of the Rosary was "good radio" and out of its success grew Family Theatre.

Each week Family Theatre presents an entertaining 30-minute radio play featuring two leading stars of stage, screen or radio. A third star, acting as host, presents a one-minute family prayer commercial at the end of each program. The 400 stars who have appeared on Family Theatre represent every creed and denomination. Having celebrated its fourth anniversary on the air, Family Theatre is now carried by more than 700 stations of the Mutual Broadcasting System and the Armed Forces Radio Service and is heard by transcription in many parts of Canada, Latin America and the Philippine Islands.

The yearly Rosary programs—The Joyful Hour at Christmas, The Triumphant House at Easter and The Thanksgiving Hour at Thanksgiving—are hour-long programs carried by both radio and television networks and built around the recitation of the Rosary and dramatization of the mysteries.

A Message for the Mailman

Paymaster Is Sought

Madrid, Sept. 2 (AP)—European police searched today odf Capt. Julian Rodriguez Pastrana, chief paymaster of Gen. Francisco Franco's War Ministry reported missing with at least $360,000. Army officials said the captain failed to return Aug. 27 from a temporary five-day leave. An investigation showed he had prepared a passport and other travel documents for an extended trip—destination unknown. Rodriguez apparently crossed the border into France several days ago and halted briefly in San Jean De Luz, police reported. After that, his trail disappeared.

Mail Carriers Ask Restoration of 2 Deliveries Daily

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—The National Association of Letter Carriers wants Congress to order restoration of more than one-a-day residential mail deliveries.

The AFL union, in a resolution unanimously adopted yesterday at the opening session of its 38th biennial convention, also rapped Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson for curtailing deliveries.

William C. Doherty, president of the association for 19 years, called for replacement of Donaldson in a speech just before the union adopted the resolution.

"Regardless of whether the Democrats or Republicans win, there is bound to be a change for the better for the postal service," Doherty said. "We are convinced that the answer to the problem of what is wrong is that we need a new postmaster general."

The resolution on mail deliveries asked Congress to act because "the career postmaster general has done nothing to end the vicious results of his infamous curtailment order" of April 17, 1950.

Inhumane working conditions impairing the health of letter carriers have been caused by the order, the resolution said.

Donaldson is the first career postal employe to rise to the top of the department.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential nominee, was among the speakers who addressed the delegates representing about 100,000 union members.

A union official later said that the Eisenhower apearance did not mean the letter carriers endorsed him. The official said the letter carriers, as federal employes, must refrain under law from direct political activity.

Graphite Pencils

Lead pencils apparently originated in England about 1560, with discovery of the Barrowdale graphite mine in Cumberland. Raw graphite was sawed into strips and, without further treatment, inserted into slots cut lengthwise in wooden dowels. First real invention was made in 1795 simultaneously by Conte in Paris and Hardmuth in Vienna.

Hurrying to Draw May Cause Trouble

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When you're playing a difficult trump contract, don't be in a hurry to draw all of the trumps. Drawing trumps is the best plan on most easy hands, but is seldom the right way to begin difficult hands.

In today's hand, for example, South had to leave one trump out to make his contract. The reason is easier to show than to explain.

West opened the king of spades and continued the suit, South ruffing. Declarer could now afford to draw two rounds of trumps with the ace and the king, but then he had to stop.

Declarer next switched to diamonds, and East shrewdly allowed dummy's king of diamonds to win the first trick in that suit. Declarer continued diamonds, and East won with the jack.

Now East led a third round of spades, and South was glad that he had left two trumps in the dummy. He could ruff the spade with dummy's low trump, ruff out the ace of diamonds, and return to dummy by leading a trump to the queen in order to take the rest of the tricks with the established diamonds.

See what would happen if South made the mistake of drawing three rounds of trumps at the very beginning. East would refuse the first diamond trick, but would win the second with the jack. He would then return a spade.

If South ruffed in dummy, he would thereby use up the last entry to dummy's diamonds. If he ruffed in his own hand, it would be even worse since that would use up his own last trump, after which it would be quite impossible to bring in dummy's diamonds.

The greatest per cent of increase in population and the greatest numerical increase occurred during the period from 1870 to 1880 when 12,029 persons were added to the population or 190.5 per cent.

According to the Census Bureau, the population in 1950 was 28,817.

If Kingston's growth had continued to the extent shown from 1870 to 1880, today it would be one of the largest cities in America.

It would seem from the above figures that the succeeding generations didn't inherit their fathers' Yankee go-getting.

Kingston was a pioneer in this country in what might be termed chamber of commerce consciousness. Way back in January 1783, years before the Constitution provided that our national capital should be a district set apart, Kingston petitioned the New York Assembly to make it into a separate district to be the seat of the national capital and that congress be invited to come here to sit.

The foresight of the pioneers in Kingston is worthy of recognition.

AWARDS FOR SUPERIOR DRIVERS

Somewhere recently we read about a small airplane darting down out of the sky to spot a particular motorist tooling down the highway. At the next town the motorist was stopped by the police. The driver's apprehension changed to bewildered astonishment when the cops pinned a medal on him. It was for careful driving.

The plane was one used by the state police to patrol the highways. After watching the motorist in question drive along for several miles, obeying all the rules and driving in a mannerly way, the plane police radioed to their headquarters in the next town that this guy deserved a medal.

They've been doing it for some time, now, and the results are reported fine.

This strikes us as one of the sharpest, smartest approaches we've heard of to a problem we wish we'd never heard of—the mass killing on our highways.

For one thing, the airplane gimmick is healthily positive. We have too many restrictive "don'ts" in our traffic regulations—don't turn left, don't go over 30, don't turn off the bridge or you'll drop in the Quahoosik River.

But instead of more "don'ts," here's a police force that says, in effect, you did a smart job of driving today, and here's a medal to prove it.

That sort of psychology seems from where we're sitting to be the one successful antidote to our dangerous lack of driving manners—the attitude that the smart guy is the one who breaks the rules and gets away with it.

And that goes back to the fact that somewhere along the line we've acquired a whole set of false values regarding our conduct while in the driver's seat.

Everyone knows too well the kind of person who is as gentle and considerate as he can be until he gets behind the wheel of his car. Then something comes over him. His jaws clench, his eyes narrow, his hands grip the wheel until the knuckles are white. And woe betide the driver who crosses his path.

His ordinary good manners completely desert him as he darts dangerously through holes in the traffic line, forces other cars out of their paths, blows his horn, and in general becomes a 160-horsepower bully.

Somehow we've gotten sidetracked into thinking that traffic laws are something it's smart to beat—like betting on the horses and winning, and not paying your county tax.

It's that attitude which must be changed if we hope to save some of the more than 30,000 lives which are lost in traffic accidents each year. Just saying "don't" isn't enough. That already has been proved.

So why not try a switch to the positive—a system of awards for good driving? And let's be a little dramatic and original in our thinking and planning on the subject. The cops in the airplane is good for a starter. Let's go on from there.

THE INSTITUTE OF PACIFIC RELATIONS

Gerald Swope, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Institute of Pacific Relations, has addressed a letter to his members in which he states:

"I have read the (McCarran) Report myself, and I consider it to be extremely biased and unfair. By innuendo and by omission or distortion of evidence it conveys a thoroughly misleading and prejudiced account of the I.P.R. Some of you may feel that there have been instances of inappropriate conduct or poor judgment on the part of I.P.R. officers or employes in the past and these actions may well be open to legitimate criticism after a fair examination of the attendant circumstances. . . ."

I have not only read the report of the McCarran Committee's investigation into the Institute of Pacific Relations, but every word of the 14 volumes of testimony and all the documentary evidence attached to them.

I should have imagined that Mr. Swope would have read all the evidence because the report leans over backwards in avoiding prejudice, whereas the evidence, in detail, provides damaging proof of the complicity of officers and employes of the Institute in the Communist conspiracy.

It is the utmost irresponsibility to speak of instances of "inappropriate conduct or poor judgment." Men are responsible for their conduct; institutions are responsible for the men they employ. This cannot be ducked on the assumption that it is possible for the best of us, as for the worst, to make mistakes. We usually have to pay for our mistakes.

The McCarran Committee Report had this to say on the Institute of Pacific Relations:

"The Institute of Pacific Relations has not maintained the character of an objective, scholarly, and research organization.

"The IPR has been considered by the American Communist Party and by Soviet officials as an instrument of Communist policy, propaganda and military intelligence.

"The IPR disseminated and sought to popularize false information including information originating from Soviet and Communist sources.

"A small core of officials and staff members carried the main burden of IPR activities and directed its administration and policies.

"Members of the small core of officials and staff members who controlled IPR were either Communist or pro-Communist.

"There is no evidence that the large majority of its members supported the IPR for any reason except to advance the professed research and scholarly purposes of the organization.

"Most members of the IPR, and most members of its Board of Trustees, were inactive and obviously without any influence over the policies of the organization and the conduct of its affairs.

"IPR activities were made possible largely through the financial support of American industrialists, corporations, and foundations, the majority of whom were not familiar with the inner workings of the organization.

"The effective leadership of the IPR often sought to deceive IPR contributors and supporters as to the true character and activities of the organization.

"Neither the IPR nor any substantial body of those associated with it as executive officers, trustees or major financial contributors has ever made any serious and objective investigation of the charges that the IPR was infiltrated by Communists and was used for pro-Communist and pro-Soviet purposes.

"The names of eminent individuals were by design used as a respectable and impressive screen for the activities of the IPR inner core, and as a defense when such activities came under scrutiny."

Every statement herewith quoted can be fully substantiated by the evidence in the 14 volumes of the McCarran Committee hearings. Mr. Swope does not refer to a single item in those hearings in this letter. He does not call attention to a single error. He does not specify a single injustice by the committee. He does not defend anyone accused by the committee.

His answer to the enormous work done by the McCarran Committee is this:

". . . I am glad to say that many I.P.R. members and large corporations (among them the Standard Vacuum Oil Company, the International General Electric Company, the National City Bank, the Bankers Trust Company, and the National Cash Register Company) have in recent weeks shown their support by renewing their generous contributions. . . ."

The McCarran Committee might now inquire why an organization that has "disseminated and sought to popularize false information including information originating from Soviet and Communist sources," should be tax-exempt or why contributions to it should be deductible as a charity. That might also be considered by the Cox Committee.

TEN GUIDES FOR POLIO SEASON

As this is the season for epidemics of poliomyelitis, parents are naturally anxious to take all possible precautions to protect their children from this disease. For this reason, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has issued a leaflet to physicians which answers questions asked by anxious parents. The letter is signed by Roland H. Berg, Director, Scientific Foundation. In formation the pamphlet gives ten guides for the polio season.

1. Allow children to play with friends they have been with right along. There are three different viruses that cause polio. Your children have already been exposed to whatever polio virus may be in their group and they may have developed immunity against it.

2. Before you travel, be sure you're not headed for an area where polio outbreaks are being reported. Polio time is the time to stay at home with everyday companions.

3. Teach children to wash hands carefully before eating and always after using the toilet. Polio virus may be carried into the body through the mouth.

4. See that children do not use soiled towels, washcloths, dishes or glassware. Polio virus could be carried from these things to other people.

5. Do not let children become fatigued or chilled. Overtired or chilled bodies are less able to fight off polio.

6. Follow your doctor's advice about nose and throat operations, inoculations or teeth extractions during the polio season.

7. Watch for signs of sickness that may mean the beginning of polio: headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, tenderness and stiffness of the neck and back.

8. Put a sick person to bed at once, away from others, and call the doctor.

9. Have confidence in your doctor who knows how to treat polio. If your child has this disease, there is a better than even chance he will recover without paralysis.

10. Remember that whatever information or financial help your family needs for polio care can be obtained by telephoning your local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

His Favorite Chef

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

REP. EDITH NOURSE ROGERS

Washington—It is well said that what is past is prologue, but it is also well to observe that for the present to engage in quarrel over the past is to jeopardize the future.

During these debatable days of the nominees for the new leadership of our country next January, you and I and all the American people want clear, crisp decisions regarding the real, vital, important issues confronting us at this time and not a discussion of affairs past which are finished and cannot be changed.

The issues we are concerned with dominate and control our lives now and our future depends on their correct solution. These issues concern foreign and domestic policies which are strongly and interdependently woven together like the steel wire of a submarine net.

Failure to meet the challenge of any of these problems squarely and successfully is reflected upon the personal life and freedom of every individual in our land. Throughout the nation the American people deeply realize the significance of these issues. They are looking for the right answers, the cost and sacrifices involved, rather than to personalities and their past accomplishments.

The stakes are high and the time too serious for generalities and platitudes. The American people are desperate for decisions, for plans of action which will revive their hope, restore their faith, renew their courage and reestablish their honor. The leadership that faces up to the issues courageously makes the decisions and precisely produces the best formula of action, is the leadership which will be intrusted with the destiny of our republic for the next four years.

For example, there is nothing to be gained in debating the responsibility for Korea, who got us there, how we got there and why we are there. The fact is we are there at this moment. As a nation we are committed.

The issue is how can we get out with honor, and when? Certainly American mothers cannot be called upon unceasingly to yield up their sons and daughters in a cruel, endless "police action" of containment, rather than a clear-cut achievement of vistory.

There is no such thing as a halfway or a 50 per cent war. It is all or nothing. For Korea there is no decision to be found in the middle of the road or to the left or to the right.

If democracy is to live in this our land, surely the youth must be freed of the shackles of constant military demands and permitted the liberty to plan their lives and their times. It is time for a decision on Korea. Panmunjom, if it were not tragic, would be a ludicrous fiasco.

Tragic Error

Again there is nothing to be gained for the present and future by looking back into the past and pointing fingers of responsibility for our tragic error of permitting Russia to gain dominance over most of Asia, eastern Europe and permitting Soviet Control of Austria, Poland, Hungary, part of Germany and other areas in western Europe. The fact is that due to our vacillating policy the Red flag of Communism has been planted over the ramparts of the world to such an extent that freedom everywhere is threatened, even our own liberty here at home.

The issue is not the fact or the responsibility of this existing situation. The issue is what can America do to alter this balance of power and achieve a dependable peace in the world. The issue involved here is a challenge to every American and to free men everywhere.

The new leadership of next January must face this issue. How and in what way? These are questions we want the answers to now. These answers require careful planning.

We cannot be hopelessly involved in a collective undertaking in which we find ourselves holding the major responsibility with authority reposed in the hands of others. Nor can we become committed to any undertaking involving an inexhaustible expenditure of our own material resources, for to weaken America and reduce it to the level of mediocrity would be to destroy freedom, the very thing we are striving to save.

It is time for a decision. The American people are waiting for the new leadership to address themselves cogently and succinctly to this issue of peace and how it can be dependably obtained They want to hear their conclusions based upon their knowledge and experience. They don't want to hear such generalities and platitudes as the middle of the road is the proper course to follow.

To say that the great dominating controlling issue of this campaign is the "organization of the peace" is to assume the conclusion Everyone is in favor of peace, just as everyone is opposed to sin. The pith of the matter is the method to be used.

Though we want the result badly, we want to know the mechanics, the machinations necessary for this "organization of peace." We want to know these details now so that we can indorse or reject them while there still is an opportunity for choice.

The middle of the road doesn't contain the answer. Neither does the left nor the right. These are academic.

The issue is global, not national. Peace cannot be purchased. The method of attainment must be molded by world leadership, based on sound ideas, rooted in truth and nourished in world respect.

Past Standards

In a discussion of the present fabric of our national economy it avails nothing to look back into the standards of a past period which were subject to a different set of conditions and forces. The people of America are not concerned with the fact there was a depression 20 years ago. They are concerned, however, at this time with the high prices of food, with high rents, the high cost of necessities, the high cost of living. They are concerned about higher and higher and more and more taxes. They are concerned about inflation and the whole gamut of its tragic repressive problems.

The facts of this situation are known and experienced by everyone. Every man and woman who make a daily trip to the grocer knows a dollar buys less and less. The issue is inflation and how it can be curtailed without the imposition of oppressive and arbitrary controls which, in themselves, are shackles upon the liberty and freedom of every American.

It is high time effective decisions were made. The new leadership must make these decisions and the American people want to know their answers before they choose and intrust one of them with the stewardship of the nation.

There is the issue of our national defense and how we can adequately rearm the nation without causing unbearable burden upon the people.

There is the issue of insuring the farmer a market for his produce at prices sufficient to encourage his initiative, energy and enterprise in lean years, as well as in years of large production. Agricultural economy must be kept in balance with the economy of the entire nation.

There is the issue of working out a satisfactory solution of the relationship between labor and industry so that both may prosper and the national interest is completely protected. If this issue is constructively solved, there need be no further fear of communism rooting itself in American life.

There is the issue of increasing our educational facilities to care adequately for ever-increasing requirements while our entire educational system is purged of subversive and immoral factors and influences.

There is the issue of the ever-increasing power of the federal government and the resulting inherent dangers to the future of the country. As this power expands and more and more control is gained over the individual, the liberty and freedom burning in the heart of every citizen could be quenched. This must not take place,, but it is gaining like creeping paralysis.

These issues must be faced. The American people want answers and decisions now. The solution cannot be found in the middle of the road or to the left or the right. The answers are to be found in leadership, in faith, in trust, in respect, in sound ideas molded in the crucible of experience.

There are many issues facing the people of America today. All of us hope the nominated leaders of the two great political parties will precisely present their views. If this is done, there is no question but that the American people will make the right decision. If nourished with knowledge, cooperation, honesty, faith and trust in God and courage to solve every problem, our democracy will live.

The prologue is over. It is time for the acts to be presented to the great American citizenry, who will consider both the players and the climax in the exercise of their judgment next November. The title of this presentation, certainly, is not "the middle of the road." It is, "the time for decision."

Stevenson's Soft Approach to Communist Issue Might Be His Undoing in Campaign

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 2—Governor Stevenson may have pulled the biggest "boner" of his presidential campaign—it remains to be seen whether he will make a worse one by continuing to embrace the "left wing" line that freedom of thought is endangered by the effort being made to rid our government of Communistic influences.

The Democratic nominee has adopted the "soft" approach to the Communist issue. This will only serve to intensify the efforts of a large number of members of the American Legion to defeat him at the polls. If anybody doubts the vote-getting influence of the legion in America, let him note the respectful attitude of Congress toward the Legion, whose members have furnished the backbone in the fight of the last two decades against communism in America. Every time—and there have been many roll calls—that the usual patter about violating constitutional rights and "smearing innocent persons" has been raised, the House and the Senate by overwhelming vote of Republicans and Democrats alike has authorized a continuance of the investigations or furnished additional funds for the purpose. In every instance the American Legion was the principal proponent of the action taken by Congress.

Governor Stevenson has on his campaign staff some of the militant "left wingers" whose regular tirades against the anti-Communist drive in America are characterized by the familiar slogans which the governor parroted in his speech to the Legion as "free enterprise of the mind" or "the climate of fear in which we live" or how "fear breeds repression." He attempted to rebuke the Legion by giving greater emphasis to the tactics of the accusers than to the charges they have made. He inferentially condemned the Legion by saying it "must be vigilant in preserving our birthright from its too-zealous friends." Who are the "too zealous friends?" Doesn't the Legion know the difference between zeal and alertness, between those who would cover up and those who would expose evildoers to the healthy air of pitiless publicity?

Not a word was uttered in that speech about the traitorous conduct of Alger Hiss or about the failure of the Department of State to be "vigilant" and "zealous" in protecting the innocent American people from a "climate of fear" engendered by the theft of the atom bomb secret by Fuchs, the confessed Russian spy. He was cleared for entry into the United States by a careless State Department.

Here is what Hiram W. Bingham, chairman of the President's Loyalty Review Board, told the Civil Service Commission last year in a secret meeting, the minutes of which, through Senator McCarthy's efforts, subsequently became public:

"The State Department . . . has the worst record of any department in the action of its loyalty record. Its loyalty board in all the cases they have considered in the State Department has not found anyone—shall I say guilty—or not found anyone disloyal under our rule. It is the only loyalty board which has acted in that way . . ."

Mr. Bingham went on to say that the State Department allowed persons to resign when hearings taking up FBI evidence were begun and things got hot. The public was never permitted to know the number, if not the names, of those who were guilty. There was a constant cover-up tactic and that's what has hurt the State Department's reputation more than McCarthy's charges.

Thus in one conspicuous case where the State Department's own loyalty board by a three to nothing vote found a foreign service official ineligible under the loyalty rule, the decision was reversed by Secretary Acheson himself and the official was allowed to resign simultaneously with a misleading announcement that he had been "cleared" and with no mention at all of what the department's own loyalty board had voted. Senator McCarthy exposed that piece of misguided "vigilance."

In another case a foreign service officer of the State Department, after being confronted with the evidence, conceded that he had lived for a year or more in the Far East with a known Communist agent while on duty for the Department of State. Yet the State Department "cleared" him and he was fired under the disloyalty rule only when the President's Loyalty Review Board examined into all the evidence.

The "left wing" never refers to these cases except in an abstract way and then only with the familiar phrases about "witch hunts" and "hysteria" by which they sweepingly characterize the work of those persons who try to ferret out Communistic influences in our government.

The strategy of the "left wing" is to try to discredit the accuser and ignore the accusations.

But the Senate of the United States has looked carefully into the McCarthy accusations. On July 2, a voluminous report written by Republimans and Democrats was filed with the Senate. Not an opposition vote was cast against it by the members of the Judiciary Committee which filed it. That report upheld the McCarthy charges of Communistic influence in the Department of State.

The American Legion knows the score—it knew the score long before Senator McCarthy appeared on the scene as a rugged champion of the innocent people of America who want communism stamped out of the government. It is regrettable that Governor Stevenson has allowed his "left wing" advisers to lead him into the pitfalls of that American Legion speech. It will plague him in every nook and corner of the land where the Legion with the help of various Catholic organizations, patriotic societies and certain alert labor groups, are courageously and persistently fighting the battle against communistic influence inside the United States Government.

Despite continued activity against opium smugglers and keepers of opium-smoking saloons, the smoking of opium was still rife in the colony, the report said.

Q—How do we measure the speed of a glacier?

A—A glacier moves down a valley much as a mass of almost solid tar would move down a slope. The upper and middle parts move the fastest. The sides and bottoms are sleeved as they rub against the bottom of the valley. The speed of the glacier can be measured by the movement of an object on its surface.

KINGSTON PIONEERS ON THE JOB

The Census Bureau declares that Kingston was first reported during the census enumeration of 1870 and at that time the population was 6,315.

The greatest per cent of increase in population and the greatest numerical increase occurred during the period from 1870 to 1880 when 12,029 persons were added to the population or 190.5 per cent.

"Most members of the IPR, and most members of its Board of Trustees, were inactive and obviously without any influence over the policies of the organization and the conduct of its affairs.

"IPR activities were made possible largely through the financial support of American industrialists, corporations, and foundations, the majority of whom were not familiar with the inner workings of the organization.

"The effective leadership of the IPR often sought to deceive IPR contributors and supporters as to the true character and activities of the organization.

"Neither the IPR nor any substantial body of those associated with it as executive officers, trustees or major financial contributors has ever made any serious and objective investigation of the charges that the IPR was infiltrated by Communists and was used for pro-Communist and pro-Soviet purposes.

"The names of eminent individuals were by design used as a respectable and impressive screen for the activities of the IPR inner core, and as a defense when such activities came under scrutiny."

Every statement herewith quoted can be fully substantiated by the evidence in the 14 volumes of the McCarran Committee hearings. Mr. Swope does not refer to a single item in those hearings in this letter. He does not call attention to a single error. He does not specify a single injustice by the committee. He does not defend anyone accused by the committee.

His answer to the enormous work done by the McCarran Committee is this:

". . . I am glad to say that many I.P.R. members and large corporations (among them the Standard Vacuum Oil Company, the International General Electric Company, the National City Bank, the Bankers Trust Company, and the National Cash Register Company) have in recent weeks shown their support by renewing their generous contributions. . . ."

The McCarran Committee might now inquire why an organization that has "disseminated and sought to popularize false information including information originating from Soviet and Communist sources," should be tax-exempt or why contributions to it should be deductible as a charity. That might also be considered by the Cox Committee.

TEN GUIDES FOR POLIO SEASON

As this is the season for epidemics of poliomyelitis, parents are naturally anxious to take all possible precautions to protect their children from this disease. For this reason, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has issued a leaflet to physicians which answers questions asked by anxious parents. The letter is signed by Roland H. Berg, Director, Scientific Foundation. In formation the pamphlet gives ten guides for the polio season.

1. Allow children to play with friends they have been with right along. There are three different viruses that cause polio. Your children have already been exposed to whatever polio virus may be in their group and they may have developed immunity against it.

2. Before you travel, be sure you're not headed for an area where polio outbreaks are being reported. Polio time is the time to stay at home with everyday companions.

3. Teach children to wash hands carefully before eating and always after using the toilet. Polio virus may be carried into the body through the mouth.

4. See that children do not use soiled towels, washcloths, dishes or glassware. Polio virus could be carried from these things to other people.

5. Do not let children become fatigued or chilled. Overtired or chilled bodies are less able to fight off polio.

6. Follow your doctor's advice about nose and throat operations, inoculations or teeth extractions during the polio season.

7. Watch for signs of sickness that may mean the beginning of polio: headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, tenderness and stiffness of the neck and back.

8. Put a sick person to bed at once, away from others, and call the doctor.

9. Have confidence in your doctor who knows how to treat polio. If your child has this disease, there is a better than even chance he will recover without paralysis.

10. Remember that whatever information or financial help your family needs for polio care can be obtained by telephoning your local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

REP. EDITH NOURSE ROGERS

Washington—It is well said that what is past is prologue, but it is also well to observe that for the present to engage in quarrel over the past is to jeopardize the future.

During these debatable days of the nominees for the new leadership of our country next January, you and I and all the American people want clear, crisp decisions regarding the real, vital, important issues confronting us at this time and not a discussion of affairs past which are finished and cannot be changed.

The issues we are concerned with dominate and control our lives now and our future depends on their correct solution. These issues concern foreign and domestic policies which are strongly and interdependently woven together like the steel wire of a submarine net.

Failure to meet the challenge of any of these problems squarely and successfully is reflected upon the personal life and freedom of every individual in our land. Throughout the nation the American people deeply realize the significance of these issues. They are looking for the right answers, the cost and sacrifices involved, rather than to personalities and their past accomplishments.

The stakes are high and the time too serious for generalities and platitudes. The American people are desperate for decisions, for plans of action which will revive their hope, restore their faith, renew their courage and reestablish their honor. The leadership that faces up to the issues courageously makes the decisions and precisely produces the best formula of action, is the leadership which will be intrusted with the destiny of our republic for the next four years.

For example, there is nothing to be gained in debating the responsiblity for Korea, who got us there, how we got there and why we are there. The fact is we are there at this moment. As a nation we are committed.

The issue is how can we get out with honor, and when? Certainly American mothers cannot be called upon unceasingly to yield up their sons and daughters in a cruel, endless "police action" of containment, rather than a clear-cut achievement of vistory.

There is no such thing as a halfway or a 50 per cent war. It is all or nothing. For Korea there is no decision to be found in the middle of the road or to the left or to the right.

If democracy is to live in this our land, surely the youth must be freed of the shackles of constant military demands and permitted the liberty to plan their lives and their times. It is time for a decision on Korea. Panmunjom, if it were not tragic, would be a ludicrous fiasco.

Tragic Error

Again there is nothing to be gained for the present and future by looking back into the past and pointing fingers of responsibility for our tragic error of permitting Russia to gain dominance over most of Asia, eastern Europe and permitting Soviet Control of Austria, Poland, Hungary, part of Germany and other areas in western Europe. The fact is that due to our vacillating policy the Red flag of Communism has been planted over the ramparts of the world to such an extent that freedom everywhere is threatened, even our own liberty here at home.

The issue is not the fact or the responsibility of this existing situation. The issue is what can America do to alter this balance of power and achieve a dependable peace in the world. The issue involved here is a challenge to every American and to free men everywhere.

The new leadership of next January must face this issue. How and in what way? These are questions we want the answers to now. These answers require careful planning.

We cannot be hopelessly involved in a collective undertaking in which we find ourselves holding the major responsibility with authority reposed in the hands of others. Nor can we become committed to any undertaking involving an inexhaustible expenditure of our own material resources, for to weaken America and reduce it to the level of mediocrity would be to destroy freedom, the very thing we are striving to save.

It is time for a decision. The American people are waiting for the new leadership to address themselves cogently and succinctly to this issue of peace and how it can be dependably obtained They want to hear their conclusions based upon their knowledge and experience. They don't want to hear such generalities and platitudes as the middle of the road is the proper course to follow.

To say that the great dominating controlling issue of this campaign is the "organization of the peace" is to assume the conclusion Everyone is in favor of peace, just as everyone is opposed to sin. The pith of the matter is the method to be used.

Though we want the result badly, we want to know the mechanics, the machinations necessary for this "organization of peace." We want to know these details now so that we can indorse or reject them while there still is an opportunity for choice.

The middle of the road doesn't contain the answer. Neither does the left nor the right. These are academic.

The issue is global, not national. Peace cannot be purchased. The method of attainment must be molded by world leadership, based on sound ideas, rooted in truth and nourished in world respect.

Past Standards

In a discussion of the present fabric of our national economy it avails nothing to look back into the standards of a past period which were subject to a different set of conditions and forces. The people of America are not concerned with the fact there was a depression 20 years ago. They are concerned, however, at this time with the high prices of food, with high rents, the high cost of necessities, the high cost of living. They are concerned about higher and higher and more and more taxes. They are concerned about inflation and the whole gamut of its tragic repressive problems.

The facts of this situation are known and experienced by everyone. Every man and woman who make a daily trip to the grocer knows a dollar buys less and less. The issue is inflation and how it can be curtailed without the imposition of oppressive and arbitrary controls which, in themselves, are shackles upon the liberty and freedom of every American.

It is high time effective decisions were made. The new leadership must make these decisions and the American people want to know their answers before they choose and intrust one of them with the stewardship of the nation.

There is the issue of our national defense and how we can adequately rearm the nation without causing unbearable burden upon the people.

There is the issue of insuring the farmer a market for his produce at prices sufficient to encourage his initiative, energy and enterprise in lean years, as well as in years of large production. Agricultural economy must be kept in balance with the economy of the entire nation.

There is the issue of working out a satisfactory solution of the relationship between labor and industry so that both may prosper and the national interest is completely protected. If this issue is constructively solved, there need be no further fear of communism rooting itself in American life.

There is the issue of increasing our educational facilities to care adequately for ever-increasing requirements while our entire educational system is purged of subversive and immoral factors and influences.

There is the issue of the ever-increasing power of the federal government and the resulting inherent dangers to the future of the country. As this power expands and more and more control is gained over the individual, the liberty and freedom burning in the heart of every citizen could be quenched. This must not take place., but it is gaining like creeping paralysis.

These issues must be faced. The American people want answers and decisions now. The solution cannot be found in the middle of the road or to the left or the right. The answers are to be found in leadership, in faith, in trust, in respect, in sound ideas molded in the crucible of experience.

There are many issues facing the people of America today. All of us hope the nominated leaders of the two great political parties will precisely present their views. If this is done, there is no question but that the American people will make the right decision. If nourished with knowledge, cooperation, honesty, faith and trust in God and courage to solve every problem, our democracy will live.

The prologue is over. It is time for the acts to be presented to the great American citizenry, who will consider both the players and the climax in the exercise of their judgment next November. The title of this presentation, certainly, is not "the middle of the road." It is, "the time for decision."

Stevenson's Soft Approach to Communist Issue Might Be His Undoing in Campaign

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 2—Governor Stevenson may have pulled the biggest "boner" of his presidential campaign—it remains to be seen whether he will make a worse one by continuing to embrace the "left wing" line that freedom of thought is endangered by the effort being made to rid our government of Communistic influences.

The Democratic nominee has adopted the "soft" approach to the Communist issue. This will only serve to intensify the efforts of a large number of members of the American Legion to defeat him at the polls. If anybody doubts the vote-getting influence of the legion in America, let him note the respectful attitude of Congress toward the Legion, whose members have furnished the backbone in the fight of the last two decades against communism in America. Every time—and there have been many roll calls—that the usual patter about violating constitutional rights and "smearing innocent persons" has been raised, the House and the Senate by overwhelming vote of Republicans and Democrats alike has authorized a continuance of the investigations or furnished additional funds for the purpose. In every instance the American Legion was the principal proponent of the action taken by Congress.

Governor Stevenson has on his campaign staff some of the militant "left wingers" whose regular tirades against the anti-Communist drive in America are characterized by the familiar slogans which the governor parroted in his speech to the Legion as "free enterprise of the mind" or "the climate of fear in which we live" or how "fear breeds repression." He attempted to rebuke the Legion by giving greater emphasis to the tactics of the accusers than to the charges they have made. He inferentially condemned the Legion by saying it "must be vigilant in preserving our birthright from its too-zealous friends." Who are the "too zealous friends?" Doesn't the Legion know the difference between zeal and alertness, between those who would cover up and those who would expose evildoers to the healthy air of pitiless publicity?

Not a word was uttered in that speech about the traitorous conduct of Alger Hiss or about the failure of the Department of State to be "vigilant" and "zealous" in protecting the innocent American people from a "climate of fear" engendered by the theft of the atom bomb secret by Fuchs, the confessed Russian spy. He was cleared for entry into the United States by a careless State Department.

Here is what Hiram W. Bingham, chairman of the President's Loyalty Review Board, told the Civil Service Commission last year in a secret meeting, the minutes of which, through Senator McCarthy's efforts, subsequently became public:

"The State Department . . . has the worst record of any department in the action of its loyalty record. Its loyalty board in all the cases they have considered in the State Department has not found anyone—shall I say guilty—or not found anyone disloyal under our rule. It is the only loyalty board which has acted in that way . . ."

Mr. Bingham went on to say that the State Department allowed persons to resign when hearings taking up FBI evidence were begun and things got hot. The public was never permitted to know the number, if not the names, of those who were guilty. There was a constant cover-up tactic and that's what has hurt the State Department's reputation more than McCarthy's charges.

Thus in one conspicuous case where the State Department's own loyalty board by a three to nothing vote found a foreign service official ineligible under the loyalty rule, the decision was reversed by Secretary Acheson himself and the official was allowed to resign simultaneously with a misleading announcement that he had been "cleared" and with no mention at all of what the department's own loyalty board had voted. Senator McCarthy exposed that piece of misguided "vigilance."

In another case a foreign service officer of the State Department, after being confronted with the evidence, conceded that he had lived for a year or more in the Far East with a known Communist agent while on duty for the Department of State. Yet the State Department "cleared" him and he was fired under the disloyalty rule only when the President's Loyalty Review Board examined into all the evidence.

The "left wing" never refers to these cases except in an abstract way and then only with the familiar phrases about "witch hunts" and "hysteria" by which they sweepingly characterize the work of those persons who try to ferret out Communistic influences in our government.

The strategy of the "left wing" is to try to discredit the accuser and ignore the accusations.

But the Senate of the United States has looked carefully into the McCarthy accusations. On July 2, a voluminous report written by Republimans and Democrats was filed with the Senate. Not an opposition vote was cast against it by the members of the Judiciary Committee which filed it. That report upheld the McCarthy charges of Communistic influence in the Department of State.

The American Legion knows the score—it knew the score long before Senator McCarthy appeared on the scene as a rugged champion of the innocent people of America who want communism stamped out of the government. It is regrettable that Governor Stevenson has allowed his "left wing" advisers to lead him into the pitfalls of that American Legion speech. It will plague him in every nook and corner of the land where the Legion with the help of various Catholic organizations, patriotic societies and certain alert labor groups, are courageously and persistently fighting the battle against communistic influence inside the United States Government.

Get Smuggled Opium

Singapore, (AP)—Opium confiscated in Singapore is sent to the Crown agents for the colonies in London for sale to manufacturing pharmaceutical chemists. Last year 8,000 pounds of the drug was seized by Customs Department officers, the 1951 report of the Customs and Excise Department said. Despite continued activity against opium smugglers and keepers of opium-smoking saloons, the smoking of opium was still rife in the colony, the report said.

Q—How do we measure the speed of a glacier?

A—A glacier moves down a valley much as a mass of almost solid tar would move down a slope. The upper and middle parts move the fastest. The sides and bottoms are sleeved as they rub against the bottom of the valley. The speed of the glacier can be measured by the movement of an object on its surface.

Rash of Crime Expected

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—A unit of the American Bar Association says leaders of organized crime—cowed temporarily by investigations and prosecutions—are ready to break out in a new rash of racketeering throughout the nation. The association's commission on organized crime yesterday cited demands of many public officials for establishment of a Federal agency to collect information about rackets and the movements of all known gangsters and pass on such data to local law enforcement authorities.

Gusty Winds Hit Metropolitan Area

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Stiff winds and more than an inch of rain yesterday climaxed the New York city area's Labor Day weekend of weather that went from bad to worse.

For today—with the summer's last holiday over and city dwellers back to work—the weather bureau predicted it would be fair and warmer, but maybe rainy and windy late in the day.

Yesterday's storm, which also hit parts of Pennsylvania and spread toward New England, was a by-product of the season's first hurricane. The big wind spun itself out in South Carolina early Sunday.

Winds, with gusts up to 70 miles per hour, ripped electric power lines from their poles and bowled over trees. Power failures affected tens of thousands of homes throughout the metropolitan area, particularly in New Jersey and on Long Island.

A gust of wind smashed a ground floor plate glass window of the John Wanamaker store in Manhattan.

Coast guard and harbor police were kept busy with distress calls from dozens of small craft in Long Island Sound, New York harbor, and Jamaica and Raritan (N. J.) bays. No casualties were reported.

A small plane tied down on a Long Island field was thrown 60 feet by a gust.

Westchester county, with many power failures, had 1.7 inches of rain.

Resorts and such amusement centers as Coney Island, usually their busiest on Labor Day, were almost deserted.

Traffic on highways was kept relatively light by the storm.

Rain and showers were reported throughout upstate New York areas from Albany to Buffalo.

Death Is Reported

Moscow, Sept. 2 (AP)—Moscow newspapers today reported the death of poet-satirist Sergei Basov-Verkhoyantsev, 83, a revolutionary writer who was arrested, exiled and imprisoned frequently under the Tzarist regime.

President Seems

with the White House about the speeches. "We haven't seen the President's speech. There has been no effort to coordinate what will be said."

Truman in a whistle stop talk at Crestline, O., yesterday promised "good times for everybody" if Stevenson is elected and disclosed his understanding with Stevenson:

"I am going to spend my time in this campaign telling you what has been accomplished, and why this country is in better shape than it has ever been before in its history. And Governor Stevenson is going to tell you what there is in the future, and how he's going to make the future come about as the greatest age we have ever had.

Truman didn't mention General Eisenhower by name in his Milwaukee address, but he told the labor-sponsored rally:

"The Republicans are still the party of the special interests, still the errand boys of the big lobbies, still the ones who want to exploit labor and the farmers and the consumers.

"The only thing different about them this year is that they are trying to hide behind a new face—their lonely, captive candidate.

"They have tried disguises before. They always try to put a new face on the elephant at election time. But the disguise never works because the rest of the elephant is too big to hide—and the rest of the elephant has the record of Republican reaction written all over him."

Truman Assails Dulles and Others

Aboard Truman train, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Truman openly accused the Eisenhower command today of increasing the risk of atomic war by "talking loosely about liberating the enslaved peoples of eastern Europe."

He declared that John Foster Dulles and other "masterminds" of the Eisenhower campaign are playing "cruel, gutter politics with the lives of countless good men and women behind the iron curtain."

Truman didn't mention Dulles by name in his foreign policy talk to a railroad station crowd at Parkersburg, West Va., identifying him only as a Republican "who helped in the formulation of our foreign policy."

Eisenhower Blasts

promised to unleash still more artillery—and soon. He said:

"Today and tomorrow, here in the southland, I shall intensify my attack against corruption in government; against the heedless policies that nullify our thrift and erase our savings by inflation; against federal deficits and the failure to live within our means; against waste of resources and our money; against arbitrary usurpation and seizure of power; against disloyalty in the federal service; against the whole tangled aggregation of incompetence and expediency and bossdom."

Eisenhower is due to visit Jacksonville and Miami, Fla., later today and Tampa, Fla.; Birmingham, Ala., and Little Rock, Ark., tomorrow.

It is the first time in Republican Party history that its presidential candidate has made a concerted drive for votes in the traditionally Democratic southern states.

Sen. John J. Williams, Delaware Republican who uncovered tax scandals in the Internal Revenue Bureau, yesterday arrived at Eisenhower's office in the Hotel Commodore, carrying a brief case full of documents, and spent more than two hours with the general.

Expects to Hear

Williams later told newsmen he had supplied Eisenhower with campaign ammunition and said:

"I think you'll be hearing from this."

Earlier in the day Eisenhower told the biennial convention of the AFL National Association of Letter Carriers:

"When I get sore I am really sore."

This comment came just after he heard Sen. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican and one of his advisers, tell the convention that a Kansas Democratic leader had solicited $100 campaign contributions from mail carriers under a hint that a Republican administration might fire them.

Carlson named Kenneth T. Anderson, Democratic national committeeman from Kansas, as author of the letter.

In Emporia, Kas., Anderson replied that there was "no intimation at all that any one is going to lose his job if he doesn't contribute to the Democratic Party.

"We just want to cite the information that if there is a change in administration it is very likely Democrats now in office will be replaced by Republicans."

But Eisenhower told the postmen that he was a partner in a pledge made by Carlson that:

"No classified federal employe in the Post Office service will be discharged as a result of the election of a Republican administration in November."

The general said he intended to abide by the Republican platform demand for more efficient postal service with more frequent deliveries of mail.

Adlai Fails

which captivated crowds in New York and New Jersey last week laid a political egg in Michigan.

This state, with 20 important electorial votes, is regarded as something of a key to the midwest.

President Truman lost Michigan by 35,147 votes in 1948, but the Progressive Party polled 46,515 there that year and may get only a handful this year.

Local observers say that as the situation now stands, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, has a slight edge in Michigan.

Trends in New Lamps

Black and white dominates the scene in a group of new lamps shown by the Lamp and Shade Institute. In all price brackets and lighting units—table, floor or pin-up models—the trend is to black and white. There are black finishes on wrought iron forms, china, glass, wire, ceramics and leather. A black burlap shade is mounted on white parchment in one instance. Black metal is combined with polished brass, white marble, milk brass, natural straw and even woven basketry. White china, metal or pottery is shown with interesting contrasts of black.

New Party Loses Two Top Officers

Chaplin, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—The newly formed Constitution Party has lost two top-level officers because, they said, some of its members made statements which sounded anti-Semitic.

Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson, chairman, announced her resignation and that of co-Chairman Percy L. Greaves, Jr., of Chevy-Chase, Md., at her home here yesterday.

A spokesman had said the party sought to persuade members of the electoral college to vote for Gen. Douglas MacArthur for President.

Asked if she objected to the MacArthur movement, she said she considered it "idealistic" and "not feasible."

She said some of the members of the party objected to her because she was a Catholic and foreign born.

"The principles of the party as rewritten by an unauthorized meeting of a few of the national committee in Philadelphia last week contain the phrase, 'We must preserve our Christian heritage which has been the strength of this union.'"

No Part of Bigotry

"Such a declaration," she said, "sounds to me like anti-Semitism. I will have no part of any movement which seems to me to be so stepped in bigotry."

In Philadelphia, the party's secretary W. Henry McFarland, Jr., said Mrs. Stevenson "issued the call for the meeting which she now terms unauthorized. As for it being a meeting of a few of the national committee, a majority of the entire committee was either in attendance or represented by proxy, as a matter of fact all but three national committeemen were so represented."

McFarland prefaced his statement with the remarks that Mrs. Stevenson "was in the hotel where the meeting was being conducted most of the day. We even appointed a committee to go to her rooms and invite her to the meeting."

Ballantine Beer is made to order for these hot summer days. This beer is specially brewed—deep-flavor brewed—to hold its superb flavor even at low temperatures.

Ballantine brews for flavor. For lightness, yes! For dryness, of course! But first, last, and always, Ballantine brews for flavor . . . using Nature's finest barley malts, the very choicest hops, and yeast of long and honorable pedigree. The result: fine, full flavor that chill can't kill!

Pour yourself a glass—good and cold—from a bottle or can right off the ice—and taste!

Rash of Crime Expected

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—A unit of the American Bar Association says leaders of organized crime—cowed temporarily by investigations and prosecutions—are ready to break out in a new rash of racketeering throughout the nation. The association's commission on organized crime yesterday cited demands of many public officials for establishment of a Federal agency to collect information about rackets and the movements of all known gangsters and pass on such data to local law enforcement authorities.

Gusty Winds Hit Metropolitan Area

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—Stiff winds and more than an inch of rain yesterday climaxed the New York city area's Labor Day weekend of weather that went from bad to worse.

For today—with the summer's last holiday over and city dwellers back to work—the weather bureau predicted it would be fair and warmer, but maybe rainy and windy late in the day.

Yesterday's storm, which also hit parts of Pennsylvania and spread toward New England, was a by-product of the season's first hurricane. The big wind spun itself out in South Carolina early Sunday.

Winds, with gusts up to 70 miles per hour, ripped electric power lines from their poles and bowled over trees. Power failures affected tens of thousands of homes throughout the metropolitan area, particularly in New Jersey and on Long Island.

A gust of wind smashed a ground floor plate glass window of the John Wanamaker store in Manhattan.

Coast guard and harbor police were kept busy with distress calls from dozens of small craft in Long Island Sound, New York harbor, and Jamaica and Raritan (N. J.) bays. No casualties were reported.

A small plane tied down on a Long Island field was thrown 60 feet by a gust.

Westchester county, with many power failures, had 1.7 inches of rain.

Resorts and such amusement centers as Coney Island, usually their busiest on Labor Day, were almost deserted.

Traffic on highways was kept relatively light by the storm.

Death Is Reported

Moscow, Sept. 2 (AP)—Moscow newspapers today reported the death of poet-satirist Sergei Basov-Verkhoyantsev, 83, a revolutionary writer who was arrested, exiled and imprisoned frequently under the Tzarist regime.

Three Kingston veterans recently met at Wonju, Korea. Two of the veterans, Airman Second Class Joseph Sills and Airman Second Class Joseph Keller, are stationed at Suwon, Korea. Airman Sills is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sills, 159 Smith avenue; Pfc Matthews is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews, 201 East Union street and the husband of the former Miss Jean Rider, this city; while Airman Keller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keller, 18 Hanratty street.

President Seems

with the White House about the speeches. "We haven't seen the President's speech. There has been no effort to coordinate what will be said."

Truman in a whistle stop talk at Crestline, O., yesterday promised "good times for everybody" if Stevenson is elected and disclosed his understanding with Stevenson:

"I am going to spend my time in this campaign telling you what has been accomplished, and why this country is in better shape than it has ever been before in its history. And Governor Stevenson is going to tell you what there is in the future, and how he's going to make the future come about as the greatest age we have ever had.

Truman didn't mention General Eisenhower by name in his Milwaukee address, but he told the labor-sponsored rally:

"The Republicans are still the party of the special interests, still the errand boys of the big lobbies, still the ones who want to exploit labor and the farmers and the consumers.

"The only thing different about them this year is that they are trying to hide behind a new face—their lonely, captive candidate.

"They have tried disguises before. They always try to put a new face on the elephant at election time. But the disguise never works because the rest of the elephant is too big to hide—and the rest of the elephant has the record of Republican reaction written all over him."

Truman Assails Dulles and Others

Aboard Truman train, Sept. 2 (AP)—President Truman openly accused the Eisenhower command today of increasing the risk of atomic war by "talking loosely about liberating the enslaved peoples of eastern Europe."

He declared that John Foster Dulles and other "masterminds" of the Eisenhower campaign are playing "cruel, gutter politics with the lives of countless good men and women behind the iron curtain."

Truman didn't mention Dulles by name in his foreign policy talk to a railroad station crowd at Parkersburg, West Va., identifying him only as a Republican "who helped in the formulation of our foreign policy."

Eisenhower Blasts

promised to unleash still more artillery—and soon. He said:

"Today and tomorrow, here in the southland, I shall intensify my attack against corruption in government; against the heedless policies that nullify our thrift and erase our savings by inflation; against federal deficits and the failure to live within our means; against waste of resources and our money; against arbitrary usurpation and seizure of power; against disloyalty in the federal service; against the whole tangled aggregation of incompetence and expediency and bossdom."

Eisenhower is due to visit Jacksonville and Miami, Fla., later today and Tampa, Fla.; Birmingham, Ala., and Little Rock, Ark., tomorrow.

It is the first time in Republican Party history that its presidential candidate has made a concerted drive for votes in the traditionally Democratic southern states.

Sen. John J. Williams, Delaware Republican who uncovered tax scandals in the Internal Revenue Bureau, yesterday arrived at Eisenhower's office in the Hotel Commodore, carrying a brief case full of documents, and spent more than two hours with the general.

Expects to Hear

Williams later told newsmen he had supplied Eisenhower with campaign ammunition and said:

"I think you'll be hearing from this."

Earlier in the day Eisenhower told the biennial convention of the AFL National Association of Letter Carriers:

"When I get sore I am really sore."

This comment came just after he heard Sen. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican and one of his advisers, tell the convention that a Kansas Democratic leader had solicited $100 campaign contributions from mail carriers under a hint that a Republican administration might fire them.

Carlson named Kenneth T. Anderson, Democratic national committeeman from Kansas, as author of the letter.

In Emporia, Kas., Anderson replied that there was "no intimation at all that any one is going to lose his job if he doesn't contribute to the Democratic Party.

"We just want to cite the information that if there is a change in administration it is very likely Democrats now in office will be replaced by Republicans."

But Eisenhower told the postmen that he was a partner in a pledge made by Carlson that:

"No classified federal employe in the Post Office service will be discharged as a result of the election of a Republican administration in November."

The general said he intended to abide by the Republican platform demand for more efficient postal service with more frequent deliveries of mail.

Adlai Fails

which captivated crowds in New York and New Jersey last week laid a political egg in Michigan.

This state, with 20 important electorial votes, is regarded as something of a key to the midwest.

President Truman lost Michigan by 35,147 votes in 1948, but the Progressive Party polled 46,515 there that year and may get only a handful this year.

Local observers say that as the situation now stands, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, has a slight edge in Michigan.

Trends in New Lamps

Black and white dominates the scene in a group of new lamps shown by the Lamp and Shade Institute. In all price brackets and lighting units—table, floor or pin-up models—the trend is to black and white. There are black finishes on wrought iron forms, china, glass, wire, ceramics and leather. A black burlap shade is mounted on white parchment in one instance. Black metal is combined with polished brass, white marble, milk brass, natural straw and even woven basketry. White china, metal or pottery is shown with interesting contrasts of black.

Handbag Desk

Marguerite Piazza, opera star, has a large kit handbag that opens into a real desk, complete with blotter, writing pad, slots for stationery, pen and pencils, and address book, in addition to all of the features of a regular purse. It was made by Gucci, of Rome.

New Party Loses Two Top Officers

Chaplin, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—The newly formed Constitution Party has lost two top-level officers because, they said, some of its members made statements which sounded anti-Semitic.

Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson, chairman, announced her resignation and that of co-Chairman Percy L. Greaves, Jr., of Chevy-Chase, Md., at her home here yesterday.

A spokesman had said the party sought to persuade members of the electoral college to vote for Gen. Douglas MacArthur for President.

Asked if she objected to the MacArthur movement, she said she considered it "idealistic" and "not feasible."

She said some of the members of the party objected to her because she was a Catholic and foreign born.

"The principles of the party as rewritten by an unauthorized meeting of a few of the national committee in Philadelphia last week contain the phrase, 'We must preserve our Christian heritage which has been the strength of this union.'"

No Part of Bigotry

"Such a declaration," she said, "sounds to me like anti-Semitism. I will have no part of any movement which seems to me to be so steeped in bigotry."

In Philadelphia, the party's secretary W. Henry McFarland, Jr., said Mrs. Stevenson "issued the call for the meeting which she now terms unauthorized. As for it being a meeting of a few of the national committee, a majority of the entire committee was either in attendance or represented by proxy, as a matter of fact all but three national committeemen were so represented."

McFarland prefaced his statement with the remarks that Mrs. Stevenson "was in the hotel where the meeting was being conducted most of the day. We even appointed a committee to go to her rooms and invite her to the meeting."

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

GIVE THE LADY WHAT SHE WANTS

THE STORY OF MARSHALL FIELD AND CO.

By Lloyd Wendt and Herman

The title of this book is taken from an incident which occured early in the history of the famous Chicago store. Mr. Field, strolling through the store, giving sharp attention to all that transpired, came upon a retail manager in heated dispute with a customer and settled it in accordance with the store's invariable custom, "Give the lady what she wants," snapped Mr. Field.

That policy, otherwise known as "The customer is always right" was the cornerstone of the amazing success which made "Fields" the most internationally famous mercantile establishments in America.

Of course there were other contributing factors such as Yankee shrewdness, amounting to merchandising genius of the founder: his absolute integrity; his unceasing efforts to obtain the best merchandise from all of the world's markets and to maintain the highest standards of courtesy and honesty in all dealings with his customers; his courage in overcoming countless obstacles and catastrophies—worst of which was the great Chicago fire from which, although the store was completely burned out, they managed to salvage a large proportion of the stock and within two weeks reopen in the Chicago Railways Company's horse barn!

The canny foresight which enabled the firm to ride out the panics of 1893, 1907 and the inflationary collapse of 1929, each time rising to new heights and rolling up greater profits. All this is told in an absorbing and vivid manner by the authors.

The book is crowded with anecdotes about the many personages and events of industrial Chicago, but Fields dominates the picture. Even though it was Potter Palmer from upstate New York, who in 1852, profiting from A. T. Stewart, merchant prince of Philadelphia and New York, started the trend to attract women customers. In turn young Marshall Field came from Massachusetts to take a job as stock clerk with Potter and learn from him some of the fine points of successful merchandising. That was when the movement called "Feminism" freed women from age-old traditions of dependence and urged her to demand some rights of her own, and when men had all the fun of making money and women the fun of spending it. In fact this has gone on more or less ever since.

The story sparkles with descriptions of ingenious devices employed by Fields and his bright young partners, among them Leither, Shedd, Sefridge (Mile-a-Minute Harry), Montgomery Ward and others. Each new store outdid the old one in elegance and grandeur. The opening days were high social events with the founder and his partners, white-gloved and cutaway-coated on hand to greet all comers. Frock-coated floorwalkers directed the customers and well-trained doormen welcomed the carriage trade by name. Such names as Mrs. Potter Palmer, Hetty Greene, Mrs. William McKinley, Isadora Duncan, Pres. Taft, Winston Churchill, Queen Marie of Romania, Jack Dempsey, Al Jolson, Greta Garbo, Shirley Temple, Sally Rand, and Gypsy Rose Lee to name a few. Field's prestige was not only recognized by his customers but by the employes as well. They knew that a job at Field's meant a high rating for them and were glad to work there, even though beginners received low pay and worked long hours under most rigid discipline.

There is high drama in descriptions of outstanding features in the history of Chicago. The great fire caused by Mrs. O'Leary's cow; the Crystal Palace built for the Industrial Exposition in 1875 and for a time occupied by Fields after one of their disastrous fires; the Columbia Exposition; Evangelist Dowie and his lace-making factory, patronized by Fields; the Palmer House; Harry Selfridge's spectular wedding at the Central Music Hall and finally the death and immensely impressive funeral of the founder a short time after his only son's tragic death from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

The many illustrations constitute a pictorial record of women's fashions from the 1850's to the present time. From crinolines, bustles, beribboned bonnets, pantalettes, Ferris waists, high-buttoned boots, the shocking sheath skirt etc. of the past, to the present day smooth well-tailored turnbuts. Field had them all.

Even the gay, joke-telling drummers who swarmed all over the country, selling for Fields are remembered.

The high principles of merchandising of the founder have been faithfully carried out by his successors; so that today the present store with its acres of selling space, its $250,000 Tiffany glass dome, luxurious specialty shops, the 48-foot Christmas tree, loaded with glittering decorations each year and even its four splendid Moline Elms, miracoulously growing on the State street side together constitute a gorgeous monument to the genius of Marshall Field.

In 1950 North Carolina's production of milk was 409 pounds per person.

POWER—Ayatollah Kashani, above, who heads the fanatical "Warriors of Israel," is regarded by both the Western powers and Russia as the most influential man in Iran.

IMPULSIVE PLAYING IS COSTLY

BY OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

"Please settle a problem," requests a Rapid City correspondent. "One of the regulars in our game has a very curious playing habit. She picks up a large discard pile, melds as much as she can, and then freezes the pack.

"We keep telling her that this is a foolish thing to do, but she says that we don't know anything about higher strategy. She says she will take your opinion on the matter.

"What is your verdict?"

I agree that the habit is a good way to lose. It's just about the opposite of what a good player should do.

The more you meld, the more safe discards you create for your opponents when the pack is frozen. For example, suppose you meld four aces and then freeze the pack. The player at your right may have or acquire the other four aces and may discard them safely. If you had held your aces instead of melding them, the player at your right could not safely discard his own aces.

If you meld as much as possible, the opponents will usually freeze the pack. They want to make their discards safely, and freezing virtually assures them of this advantage. You may not be able to prevent the opponents from freezing the pack in this situation, but surely you don't have to freeze the pack yourself. Let them do their own work.

Q—In the game of cut-throat Canasta, we know that the player who wins the game wins from both of the other players. Does the man who finishes in second place win from the player who finishes last?

A—There are two different ways of handling this, and this is true of most games for three people. One method is to have the man in second place win from the man in last place. The other method is to have only one winner—the player who wins the game.

The method to be used in any particular game should be settled by agreement before the game begins. If the players forget to discuss this matter, the general rule is cut-throat Canasta is that there is only one winner.

Q—When I freeze the pack, is it frozen to my side as well as to the opponents?

A—Yes. A frozen pack is frozen to both sides. There is no way of freezing the opponents out without doing the same thing to your own side.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Canadian Court Supreme

Ottawa, Canada, (AP)—Late this year or early next year, the Supreme Court of Canada will become "Supreme" in fact as well as in name. By that time, the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London will probably have disposed of all the remaining appeals from Canada. The court of Ottawa will then be Canada's court of last resort. Appeals to the judicial committee in London have been abolished by Canadian law.

That policy, otherwise known as "The customer is always right" was the cornerstone of the amazing success which made "Fields" the most internationally famous mercantile establishments in America.

Of course there were other contributing factors such as Yankee shrewdness, amounting to merchandising genius of the founder: his absolute integrity; his unceasing efforts to obtain the best merchandise from all of the world's markets and to maintain the highest standards of courtesy and honesty in all dealings with his customers; his courage in overcoming countless obstacles and catastrophies—worst of which was the great Chicago fire from which, although the store was completely burned out, they managed to salvage a large proportion of the stock and within two weeks reopen in the Chicago Railways Company's horse barn!

The canny foresight which enabled the firm to ride out the panics of 1893, 1907 and the inflationary collapse of 1929, each time rising to new heights and rolling up greater profits. All this is told in an absorbing and vivid manner by the authors.

The book is crowded with anecdotes about the many personages and events of industrial Chicago, but Fields dominates the picture. Even though it was Potter Palmer from upstate New York, who in 1852, profiting from A. T. Stewart, merchant prince of Philadelphia and New York, started the trend to attract women customers. In turn young Marshall Field came from Massachusetts to take a job as stock clerk with Potter and learn from him some of the fine points of successful merchandising. That was when the movement called "Feminism" freed women from age-old traditions of dependence and urged her to demand some rights of her own, and when men had all the fun of making money and women the fun of spending it. In fact this has gone on more or less ever since.

The story sparkles with descriptions of ingenious devices employed by Fields and his bright young partners, among them Leither, Shedd, Sefridge (Mile-a-Minute Harry), Montgomery Ward and others. Each new store outdid the old one in elegance and grandeur. The opening days were high social events with the founder and his partners, white-gloved and cutaway-coated on hand to greet all comers. Frock-coated floorwalkers directed the customers and well-trained doormen welcomed the carriage trade by name. Such names as Mrs. Potter Palmer, Hetty Greene, Mrs. William McKinley, Isadora Duncan, Pres. Taft, Winston Churchill, Queen Marie of Romania, Jack Dempsey, Al Jolson, Greta Garbo, Shirley Temple, Sally Rand, and Gypsy Rose Lee to name a few. Field's prestige was not only recognized by his customers but by the employes as well. They knew that a job at Field's meant a high rating for them and were glad to work there, even though beginners received low pay and worked long hours under most rigid discipline.

There is high drama in descriptions of outstanding features in the history of Chicago. The great fire caused by Mrs. O'Leary's cow; the Crystal Palace built for the Industrial Exposition in 1875 and for a time occupied by Fields after one of their disastrous fires; the Columbia Exposition; Evangelist Dowie and his lace-making factory, patronized by Fields; the Palmer House; Harry Selfridge's spectular wedding at the Central Music Hall and finally the death and immensely impressive funeral of the founder a short time after his only son's tragic death from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

The many illustrations constitute a pictorial record of women's fashions from the 1850's to the present time. From crinolines, bustles, beribboned bonnets, pantalettes, Ferris waists, high-buttoned boots, the shocking sheath skirt etc. of the past, to the present day smooth well-tailored turnouts. Field had them all.

Even the gay, joke-telling drummers who swarmed all over the country, selling for Fields are remembered.

The high principles of merchandising of the founder have been faithfully carried out by his successors; so that today the present store with its acres of selling space, its $250,000 Tiffany glass dome, luxurious specialty shops, the 48-foot Christmas tree, loaded with glittering decorations each year and even its four splendid Moline Elms, miraculously growing on the State street side together constitute a gorgeous monument to the genius of Marshall Field.

In 1950 North Carolina's production of milk was 409 pounds per person.

IMPULSIVE PLAYING IS COSTLY

BY OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

"Please settle a problem," requests a Rapid City correspondent. "One of the regulars in our game has a very curious playing habit. She picks up a large discard pile, melds as much as she can, and then freezes the pack.

"We keep telling her that this is a foolish thing to do, but she says that we don't know anything about higher strategy. She says she will take your opinion on the matter.

"What is your verdict?"

I agree that the habit is a good way to lose. It's just about the opposite of what a good player should do.

The more you meld, the more safe discards you create for your opponents when the pack is frozen. For example, suppose you meld four aces and then freeze the pack. The player at your right may have or acquire the other four aces and may discard them safely. If you had held your aces instead of melding them, the player at your right could not safely discard his own aces.

If you meld as much as possible, the opponents will usually freeze the pack. They want to make their discards safely, and freezing virtually assures them of this advantage. You may not be able to prevent the opponents from freezing the pack in this situation, but surely you don't have to freeze the pack yourself. Let them do their own work.

Q—In the game of cut-throat Canasta, we know that the player who wins the game wins from both of the other players. Does the man who finishes in second place win from the player who finishes last?

A—There are two different ways of handling this, and this is true of most games for three people. One method is to have the man in second place win from the man in last place. The other method is to have only one winner—the player who wins the game.

The method to be used in any particular game should be settled by agreement before the game begins. If the players forget to discuss this matter, the general rule is cut-throat Canasta is that there is only one winner.

Q—When I freeze the pack, is it frozen to my side as well as to the opponents?

A—Yes. A frozen pack is frozen to both sides. There is no way of freezing the opponents out without doing the same thing to your own side.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Canadian Court Supreme

Ottawa, Canada, (AP)—Late this year or early next year, the Supreme Court of Canada will become "Supreme" in fact as well as in name. By that time, the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London will probably have disposed of all the remaining appeals from Canada. The court of Ottawa will then be Canada's court of last resort. Appeals to the judicial committee in London have been abolished by Canadian law.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Both presidential candidates took advantage of the hospitality of the American Legion last week to smear Joe McCarthy in remarks deploring the smear-technique.

General Eisenhower's comments sounded to me as though he did not really know, first hand, what McCarthy had said but had been put up to a smear-job by political handlers who told him this was a good way to catch some pink votes in New York. Ike and Dick Nixon both plainly consider McCarthy to be a friendless oaf who can be kicked around with impunity. They will find out that McCarthy is by no means friendless, but they should be above resort to the very tricks which they reprehend in pulling such sanctimonious snoots at Joe.

Nixon accepts credit for all the great anti-Communist work that was done by the Dies Committee and the Thomas Committee of the House long before he got into the act as a freshman member of the Thomas Committee. Nixon's own part in this difficult, painful job was relatively small and he tried to grab glory for the Alger Hiss case when the truth was that he played a routine part and got the benefit of all that had gone before. He would have had a hard time finding an excuse to do less than he did.

Stevenson's attack on McCarthy was a defense of his own conduct and associations and an excuse for the criminal complacency of the regime which he served in Washington. He is a chicken-chested swash-buckler with a wooden sword "defending" General George Marshall against McCarthy's justified aspersions on his stupidity and servility.

Stevenson was one of those who could work along with Alger Hiss without suspecting him and therefore gave him a good "character" when he was accused.

He also served with and under Robert Patterson, who was a consistent, aggressive pro-Communist in the War Department and summed up his pro-Communist attitude when he said all he knew about the Communist Abraham Lincoln Brigade was that its members were brave enemies of Nazi-Fascism. He was a liar by the clock because he had absolute knowledge that this thing was a Soviet military force organized in New York, with the consent of the administration of which he was a part, in violation of our laws.

Stevenson found this pro-Communist atmosphere salubrious during his service in the Red bureaucracy of the Roosevelt-Truman regime. Don't ask me how such men as Patterson and Stevenson and such women as Eleanor Roosevelt and Anna Roosevelt can endure, without crying out and striking out, the dirty treachery which McCarthy, Pat McCarran, Dies, Thomas and, yes, old John Rankin, of Mississippi, now eliminated by a Gerrymander, have fought for years. It is up to the pinks to explain why they never fight such enemies of their country but never overlook a chance to harrass by smears the men who do fight them.

It is a strange, baffling thing that General Eisenhower, who has finally learned the truth that was so alarmingly plain to us anti-Reds from the early days of the Roosevelt reign, and Nixon and Stevenson can concentrate their attack not on the betrayers but on the man who has done most of all to expose the traitors.

McCarthy should not be an issue in this presidential campaign. He is a Republican of impeccable regularity and his analysis of Marshall's conduct was objective, precise and truthful. Even Eisenhower, who served as Marshall's subordinate and owes him much, could not come out with a direct challenge on one single allegation of fact. Ike dealt altogether in generalities which is the very charge that he and the rest of the anti-anti-Communists have been hollering at McCarthy all this time.

If Ike makes the proposition that a vote for him is a vote of confidence in George Marshall he introduces a new factor into the campaign. In that case he will have to defend Marshall on his record. He had better not try that because Marshall was a poor soldier with troops, a flunkey and so stupid that he couldn't be persuaded to give a thought to the political balance and the division of conquered area between Russia and the west after the victory of arms. Ike has insisted that he had no authority in the political decisions which have now made necessary the appalling task of rearming this country and working up a belly for a fight in western Europe. He admits that the decisions were bad, but that they were made by higher authority. Who, then, was the higher authority? Roosevelt, Hopkins and George Marshall shared that authority and McCarthy is absolutely right in berating Marshall, whether Ike likes it or not.

A great handicap of our people is that we simply do not learn or remember more than a few weeks the details of such historic devolopments as the Marshall Plan. Not one in a thousand today would be able to describe it beyond saying it was a system of American gifts to shattered countries to help them help themselves. That isn't even a kernel of the plan which was unbelievably corrupt, wasteful and vindictive, as in the treatment of Spain in reward for her rescue of a mass of helpless Jews from certain death.

McCarthy went all the way in his conclusions on Marshall.

After reviewing Marshall's grievious guilt, all proven and none of it disputed by Ike, Nixon or Stevenson, Joe said the Senate speech which has aroused these men to such fury: "The objective of this conspiracy * * * is to diminish the United States in world affairs, weaken us militarily, confuse our spirit with talk of surrender in the Far East and impair our will to resist. To what end? To the end that we shall be contained and frustrated and finally fall victim to Soviet intrigue from within and Russian military might from without."

I have known Marshall since he was a captain, adjutant to General Seibert in command of the First Division at Gondrecourt in 1917. Until the bad pro-Russian decisions began to develop to our disadvantage in the Balkans in 1943-4, I always thought of him, carelessly and without examination of his record, as a great man. His personal bearing was winsome and I had no reason to suspect him. Except that I cannot bring myself to believe that he was disloyal to the United States I now agree with Joe McCarthy and the record in all particulars.

Yonkers Boy Is Safe

Milford, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—A 14-year-old Yonkers boy, who had been missing from the summer home here for more than 8 hours was found late Sunday night on Charles Island about a mile off shore late tonight. Two Milford policemen, who waded waist deep through a heavy surf from a search boat discovered William McIntyre, Jr., wrapped in a rain-soaked blanket but sound asleep and unharmed. Mrs. McIntyre told police her son had left shortly after 2 o'clock at low tide to walk to the island by way of a sandbar which was uncovered. The rising tide trapped the boy on the island, which is several acres in extent.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

The recent exhibition at the George Washington school brought books from local shelves such as: "Highlights Among Hudson River Artists," by Clara Endicott Sears, which was loaned me by Harry Rigby. I notice that several of the artists who made our own Hudson River Valley famous on canvas were of Scotch birth or descent. Robert Walter Weir was the son of a Scotsman who came over from Paisley in 1790 and settled in New York. At first the father did very well in his mercantile and shipping business and then had reverses so that Robert had to work in a cotton factory for some 12 years. Robert's uncle took him to Albany for a while but he was unhappy there. (I remember a singing teacher in Albany by the name of Weir. I wonder if he is related.) He met there Henry Inman who was then studying under John W. Jarvis, and a strong friendship sprang up between the two young art students, which did both of them good. Weir's career followed with trips overseas and in 1846 he was made a full professor of drawing at U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

The author covers the various Hudson River School artists from many of their humble beginnings to fame. She tells of George Inness (1825-1894) being a delicate nervous child, the fifth of 13 brothers and sisters and how he insisted on becoming an artist against his father's wishes. His father was also a prosperous merchant of Scottish descent and tremendously interested in having George follow his footsteps.

George's father bought a farm near Newburgh, and there on May 1, 1825, George was born. Later they moved to Newark, N. J.. As soon as George's father saw that George did not like school but just liked to draw he tried every way to induce him to be a businessman. He even made him sole proprietor of a little grocery store at the age of 14, but the boy would have none of it. He, too, became a giant among the artists of the Hudson River School. As far as I remember there is a painting of the Castles of Grand Canyon at the Elks a 15-foot by 5-foot canvas by George Innes, Jr. Two Inness' are mentioned in the World's Almanac of artists, but the author of this book does not seem to mention them both. Also Jervis McEntee, a Kingston artist, and relative of Julia Dillon is mentioned in the Hudson River School chapter by Carl Carmer who wrote "The Hudson." This author does not mention McEntee.

Authors of historical items I feel should list all names and dates and not just go on and on with complimentary remarks and their own thoughts. One line about artist Alexander Helwig Wyant reads: "In 1880 he married Arabella Locke, and later a son was born to them." The son's name not given nor the date of his birth. If he later carved a name for himself, he remains nameless in her book.

The mention of Burns' Drug Store on Broadway the other day brought response from Miss Edna Martin, who said that it was torn down when the new Central Post Office was built and store was moved down further, which later was run by Walker, and now by Epstein. Miss Martin remembers Mrs. Burns well, as both girls worked at F. B. Mathews. Also Bill Van Kuren remembers the Burns drug store when the American Tobacco Co., employing 2,200 people was across the street and did a flourishing business.

The Perfect Man

By FRANK TRIPP

The way some folks keep fussing with radio knobs suggests that their impatience may be reflection of the way they have fussed with life. They're so busy searching for perfection that it's mostly static that they get.

About the time a program is coming pretty good, anyway good enough, somebody shakes a temperamental head, blurts "I simply can't stand that," jumps to the dials and puts everything on the bum.

"Leave it alone!" pleads a humble soul who rates "Old Black Joe" over Bach.

"It's off the station," declared the impatient one.

"Too much power," adds a sympathizer.

"No, it's a squeaky tube," says still another.

"But I was enjoying it," meekly begs the humble one. He was having a good time; until a blemish roused the critics who demanded perfection in all things — but themselves.

Meantime the homely program passes by, missed by the timid lover of the commonplace. Searchers for the impossible twist dials from one imperfection to another; and the happiness of an ordinary average guy dies aborning.

That was only a radio program, spoiled for one who liked it; but a lot of lives have been ruined just that way.

WITHIN EVERYBODY'S sphere of acquaintance there must be a couple who fit this comparison. Friends of mine did; almost to a tragic ending. The wife was looking for a perfect man.

She condemned, avoided and belittled the things and people that were a joy to him. She set out to make him over, have him fit her likes and abandon his.

She thought that she was making headway and was prone to boast about it to her friends. To one who admitted failure in like effort, she would say, "You don't know how to handle him."

Alas, the poor deluded soul! Hubby hadn't abandoned anything, and most of those who heard her boasts knew it. He sought the company of people who liked the things that he liked, and left her out.

IT ALL STARTED as an outlet for his personality. He loved his wife, all except her effort to remake him. He sneaked his fun with others, yet all of the time he would rather have bad her at his side; but she was a wet blanket.

As time went on he continued to meet, on his secret excursions, happy couples who were enjoying their lives together; who had learned to like the same things. He saw them everywhere he went. He began to feel lonely, and became resentful.

Up to then he often felt himself a heel. "But it can't be that always the man must mould his life to a woman's," he thought. He saw too many couples who had learned to give and take; who were getting so much out of life that he had never enjoyed. He decided that he had been cheated.

He rebelled, stopped sneaking his fun, got careless, and his wife found him out. Unhappy months followed and a household nearly crashed. Then a friend—a wise and true one—asked the wife why she didn't live life with her man.

It was a bitter pill, but she swallowed her pride, amid the grins of those who long had known things she didn't.

Life started all over for this couple. It was pretty late, they'd missed a lot, but they seem to be catching up. You see them everywhere together. Oh yes, this story could have been the other way around. The woman is not always the intolerant one.

BIZARRE as the comparison, still the household radio can typify life's course; by which tolerance and sacrifice can make a happy home and bring contentment to all who dwell therein.

Fussing with the dials of life will only bring blank spots in the meager years allotted us. Even as they blank the radio and make of of it a static, hateful thing, so can sticglers for perfection twist life's dials and others' hearts, but fail to find what ne'er again will be:

The Perfect Man.

Beauties Begin Annual Contest for Miss America

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP)—Today is facts and figures day for 52 lovelies longing to don the mantle of Miss America.

Contestants for the nation's best-known beauty title spent the day registering, reading over the rules and weighing their chances.

Tomorrow they'll be on display in a gala boardwalk parade, a preliminary to the start of actual competition Wednesday.

From then on until the grand climax Saturday night when Colleen Kay Hutchins, Miss America 1952, crowns the new queen, the girls will be on a merry-go-round.

They'll show they can do more than look pretty by singing or dancing or displaying some other talent and then compete for points in an evening gown and bathing suit.

This year's pretties are from 45 states, four big cities, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Washington plus Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Canada.

With the title goes a $5,000 scholarship, $4,000 in cash, an automobile, clothes and reams of other prizes.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Both presidential candidates took advantage of the hospitality of the American Legion last week to smear Joe McCarthy in remarks deploring the smear-technique.

General Eisenhower's comments sounded to me as though he did not really know, first hand, what McCarthy had said but had been put up to a smear-job by political handlers who told him this was a good way to catch some pink votes in New York. Ike and Dick Nixon both plainly consider McCarthy to be a friendless oaf who can be kicked around with impunity. They will find out that McCarthy is by no means friendless, but they should be above resort to the very tricks which they reprehend in pulling such sanctimonious snoots at Joe.

Nixon accepts credit for all the great anti-Communist work that was done by the Dies Committee and the Thomas Committee of the House long before he got into the act as a freshman member of the Thomas Committee. Nixon's own part in this difficult, painful job was relatively small and he tried to grab glory for the Alger Hiss case when the truth was that he played a routine part and got the benefit of all that had gone before. He would have had a hard time finding an excuse to do less than he did.

Stevenson's attack on McCarthy was a defense of his own conduct and associations and an excuse for the criminal complacency of the regime which he served in Washington. He is a chicken-chested swash-buckler with a wooden sword "defending" General George Marshall against McCarthy's justified aspersions on his stupidity and servility.

Stevenson was one of those who could work along with Alger Hiss without suspecting him and therefore gave him a good "character" when he was accused.

He also served with and under Robert Patterson, who was a consistent, aggressive pro-Communist in the War Department and summed up his pro-Communist attitude when he said all he knew about the Communist Abraham Lincoln Brigade was that its members were brave enemies of Nazi-Fascism. He was a liar by the clock because he had absolute knowledge that this thing was a Soviet military force organized in New York, with the consent of the administration of which he was a part, in violation of our laws.

Stevenson found this pro-Communist atmosphere salubrious during his service in the Red bureaucracy of the Roosevelt-Truman regime. Don't ask me how such men as Patterson and Stevenson and such women as Eleanor Roosevelt and Anna Roosevelt can endure, without crying out and striking out, the dirty treachery which McCarthy, Pat McCarran, Dies, Thomas and, yes, old John Rankin, of Mississippi, now eliminated by a Gerrymander, have fought for years. It is up to the pinks to explain why they never fight such enemies of their country but never overlook a chance to harrass by smears the men who do fight them.

It is a strange, baffling thing that General Eisenhower, who has finally learned the truth that was so alarmingly plain to us anti-Reds from the early days of the Roosevelt reign, and Nixon and Stevenson can concentrate their attack not on the betrayers but on the man who has done most of all to expose the traitors.

McCarthy should not be an issue in this presidential campaign. He is a Republican of impeccable regularity and his analysis of Marshall's conduct was objective, precise and truthful. Even Eisenhower, who served as Marshall's subordinate and owes him much, could not come out with a direct challenge on one single allegation of fact. Ike dealt altogether in generalities which is the very charge that he and the rest of the anti-anti-Communists have been hollering at McCarthy all this time.

If Ike makes the proposition that a vote for him is a vote of confidence in George Marshall he introduces a new factor into the campaign. In that case he will have to defend Marshall on his record. He had better not try that because Marshall was a poor soldier with troops, a flunkey and so stupid that he couldn't be persuaded to give a thought to the political balance and the division of conquered area between Russia and the west after the victory of arms. Ike has insisted that he had no authority in the political decisions which have now made necessary the appalling task of rearming this country and working up a belly for a fight in western Europe. He admits that the decisions were bad, but that they were made by higher authority. Who, then, was the higher authority? Roosevelt, Hopkins and George Marshall shared that authority and McCarthy is absolutely right in berating Marshall, whether Ike likes it or not.

A great handicap of our people is that we simply do not learn or remember more than a few weeks the details of such historic developments as the Marshall Plan. Not one in a thousand today would be able to describe it beyond saying it was a system of American gifts to shattered countries to help them help themselves. That isn't even a kernel of the plan which was unbelievably corrupt, wasteful and vindictive, as in the treatment of Spain in reward for her rescue of a mass of helpless Jews from certain death.

McCarthy went all the way in his conclusions on Marshall.

After reviewing Marshall's grievious guilt, all proven and none of it disputed by Ike, Nixon or Stevenson, Joe said the Senate speech which has aroused these men to such fury: "The objective of this conspiracy * * * is to diminish the United States in world affairs, weaken us militarily, confuse our spirit with talk of surrender in the Far East and impair our will to resist. To what end? To the end that we shall be contained and frustrated and finally fall victim to Soviet intrigue from within and Russian military might from without."

I have known Marshall since he was a captain, adjutant to General Seibert in command of the First Division at Gondrecourt in 1917. Until the bad pro-Russian decisions began to develop to our disadvantage in the Balkans in 1943-4, I always thought of him, carelessly and without examination of his record, as a great man. His personal bearing was winsome and I had no reason to suspect him. Except that I cannot bring myself to believe that he was disloyal to the United States I now agree with Joe McCarthy and the record in all particulars.

Yonkers Boy Is Safe

Milford, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—A 14-year-old Yonkers boy, who had been missing from the summer home here for more than 8 hours was found late Sunday night on Charles Island about a mile off shore late tonight. Two Milford policemen, who waded waist deep through a heavy surf from a search boad discovered William McIntyre, Jr., wrapped in a rain-soaked blanket but sound asleep and unharmed. Mrs. McIntyre told police her son had left shortly after 2 o'clock at low tide to walk to the island by way of a sandbar which was uncovered. The rising tide trapped the boy on the island, which is several acres in extent.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

The recent exhibition at the George Washington school brought books from local shelves such as: "Highlights Among Hudson River Artists," by Clara Endicott Sears, which was loaned me by Harry Rigby. I notice that several of the artists who made our own Hudson River Valley famous on canvas were of Scotch birth or descent. Robert Walter Weir was the son of a Scotsman who came over from Paisley in 1790 and settled in New York. At first the father did very well in his mercantile and shipping business and then had reverses so that Robert had to work in a cotton factory for some 12 years. Robert's uncle took him to Albany for a while but he was unhappy there. (I remember a singing teacher in Albany by the name of Weir. I wonder if he is related.) He met there Henry Inman who was then studying under John W. Jarvis, and a strong friendship sprang up between the two young art students, which did both of them good. Weir's career followed with trips overseas and in 1846 he was made a full professor of drawing at U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

The author covers the various Hudson River School artists from many of their humble beginnings to fame. She tells of George Inness (1825-1894) being a delicate nervous child, the fifth of 13 brothers and sisters and how he insisted on becoming an artist against his father's wishes. His father was also a prosperous merchant of Scottish descent and tremendously interested in having George follow his footsteps.

George's father bought a farm near Newburgh, and there on May 1, 1825, George was born. Later they moved to Newark, N. J.. As soon as George's father saw that George did not like school but just liked to draw he tried every way to induce him to be a businessman. He even made him sole proprietor of a little grocery store at the age of 14, but the boy would have none of it. He, too, became a giant among the artists of the Hudson River School. As far as I remember there is a painting of the Castles of Grand Canyon at the Elks a 15-foot by 5-foot canvas by George Innes, Jr. Two Inness' are mentioned in the World's Almanac of artists, but the author of this book does not seem to mention them both. Also Jervis McEntee, a Kingston artist, and relative of Julia Dillon is mentioned in the Hudson River School chapter by Carl Carmer who wrote "The Hudson." This author does not mention McEntee.

Authors of historical items I feel should list all names and dates and not just go on and on with complimentary remarks and their own thoughts. One line about artist Alexander Helwig Wyant reads: "In 1880 he married Arabella Locke, and later a son was born to them." The son's name not given nor the date of his birth. If he later carved a name for himself, he remains nameless in her book.

The mention of Burns' Drug Store on Broadway the other day brought response from Miss Edna Martin, who said that it was torn down when the new Central Post Office was built and store was moved down further, which later was run by Walker, and now by Epstein. Miss Martin remembers Mrs. Burns well, as both girls worked at F. B. Mathews. Also Bill Van Kuren remembers the Burns drug store when the American Tobacco Co., employing 2,200 people was across the street and did a flourishing business.

The Perfect Man

By FRANK TRIPP

The way some folks keep fussing with radio knobs suggests that their impatience may be reflection of the way they have fussed with life. They're so busy searching for perfection that it's mostly static that they get.

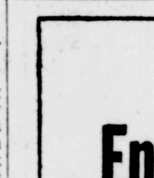
About the time a program is coming pretty good, anyway good enough, somebody shakes a temperamental head, blurts "I simply can't stand that," jumps to the dials and puts everything on the bum.

"Leave it alone!" pleads a humble soul who rates "Old Black Joe" over Bach.

"It's off the station," declared the impatient one.

"Too much power," adds a sympathizer.

"No, it's a squeaky tube," says still another.



"But I was enjoying it," meekly begs the humble one. He was having a good time; until a blemish roused the critics who demanded perfection in all things — but themselves.

Meantime the homely program passes by, missed by the timid lover of the commonplace. Searchers for the impossible twist dials from one imperfection to another; and the happiness of an ordinary average guy dies aborning.

That was only a radio program, spoiled for one who liked it; but a lot of lives have been ruined just that way.

WITHIN EVERYBODY'S sphere of acquaintance there must be a couple who fit this comparison. Friends of mine did; almost to a tragic ending. The wife was looking for a perfect man.

She condemned, avoided and belittled the things and people that were a joy to him. She set out to make him over, have him fit her likes and abandon his.

She thought that she was making headway and was prone to boast about it to her friends. To one who admitted failure in like effort, she would say, "You don't know how to handle him."

Alas, the poor deluded soul! Hubby hadn't abandoned anything, and most of those who heard her boasts knew it. He sought the company of people who liked the things that he liked, and left her out.

IT ALL STARTED as an outlet for his personality. He loved his wife, all except her effort to remake him. He sneaked his fun with others, yet all of the time he would rather have had her at his side; but she was a wet blanket.

As time went on he continued to meet, on his secret excursions, happy couples who were enjoying their lives together; who had learned to like the same things. He saw them everywhere he went. He began to feel lonely, and became resentful.

Up to then he often felt himself a heel. "But it can't be that always the man must mould his life to a woman's," he thought. He saw too many couples who had learned to give and take; who were getting so much out of life that he had never enjoyed. He decided that he had been cheated.

He rebelled, stopped sneaking his fun, got careless, and his wife found him out. Unhappy months followed and a household nearly crashed. Then a friend—a wise and true one—asked the wife why she didn't live life with her man.

It was a bitter pill, but she swallowed her pride, amid the grins of those who long had known things she didn't.

Life started all over for this couple. It was pretty late, they'd missed a lot, but they seem to be catching up. You see them everywhere together. Oh yes, this story could have been the other way around. The woman is not always the intolerant one.

BIZARRE as the comparison, still the household radio can typify life's course; by which tolerance and sacrifice can make a happy home and bring contentment to all who dwell therein.

Fussing with the dials of life will only bring blank spots in the meager years allotted us. Even as they blank the radio and make of of it a static, hateful thing, so can sticglers for perfection twist life's dials and others' hearts, but fail to find what ne'er again will be:

The Perfect Man.

Beauties Begin Annual Contest for Miss America

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP)—Today is facts and figures day for 52 lovelies longing to don the mantle of Miss America.

Contestants for the nation's best-known beauty title spent the day registering, reading over the rules and weighing their chances.

Tomorrow they'll be on display in a gala boardwalk parade, a preliminary to the start of actual competition Wednesday.

From then on until the grand climax Saturday night when Colleen Kay Hutchins, Miss America 1952, crowns the new queen, the girls will be on a merry-go-round.

They'll show they can do more than look pretty by singing or dancing or displaying some other talent and then compete for points in an evening gown and bathing suit.

This year's pretties are from 45 states, four big cities, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Washington plus Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Canada.

With the title goes a $5,000 scholarship, $4,000 in cash, an automobile, clothes and reams of other prizes.

Sees Good Home Loan Business Continuing

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—Raleigh W. Greene, president of the National Savings and Loan League, said today institutions financing home loans can expect "excellent business" to continue well into the middle of 1953.

The league is a private organization.

Greene said he finds the following optimistic indications of prosperity in the home loan field:

A heavy demand for home financing funds from savings associations throughout the country; a continued high level of housing starts; heavy requests from the Veterans Administration for appraisals on veterans loans; a stretch-out in military spending; high employment and large private savings; record breaking over-all national production.

Greene said he anticipates the government soon will lift virtually all controls on home financing, thus giving a new lift to home buying. Government officials already have announced that down payment restrictions will be eased shortly.

Second Big Blow Heads Northwest

Miami, Fla., Sept. 2 (AP)—Packing winds up to 135 miles an hour, the season's second tropical hurricane roared northwestward today in the broad Atlantic about 1,100 miles southeast to Miami.

Grady Norton, chief storm forecaster at the Miami weather bureau, said the severe tropical disturbance "should continue its present course for several days far away from any land areas."

"It may eventually swing more to the north and not hit land at all," Norton declared.

The 10 a. m. (EST) advisory pinpointed the hurricane 370 miles north-northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, near latitude 23.0 north and longitude 63.5 west, moving northwest at 12 miles an hour.

A navy hurricane-hunting plane which probed the growing disturbance reported highest winds in the northern quadrant about 115 miles per hour, with gusts in squalls up to 135 miles an hour.

Winds of 75 miles per hour or more are classed as hurricane force.

9 p. m., and removed the sand within 15 or 20 minutes, enabling traffic to resume use of the Broadway route. Barricades had been erected at the underpass early in the afternoon and traffic routed over the old Smith avenue detour.

"The grader removed the stand just like you plow snow," Steuding said.

He said that there was also "considerable" sand on Hudson street near Abeel street where a bank had been washed out.

Sewers Are Surcharged

All sewers were "surcharged" with water, he explained, pointing out that in some instances the upward thrust of water in the sewers had knocked the covers off of manholes. Eight BPW pumps of miscellaneous sizes were placed into use, including a sewer eductor pump, Steuding said. One crew was kept busy doing nothing but setting lanterns about the city at flooded points.

Steuding said that several cars were pulled out of the underpass when they failed to get through, the BPW using its big Walter truck which is employed ordinarily for plowing snow.

Police Renew Drive For 40-Hour Week

Long Beach, Sept. 2 (AP)—A renewed campaign to gain a 40-hour work week for police throughout the state was the principal issue before the four-day 27 annual convention of the Police Conference of the State of New York, opening today at Lido Beach.

The goal was announced by John E. Carton, president of the conference.

A 25-year pension system for police in upstate communities also will be urged, Carton said.

Salaries probably will occupy a major portion of the convention program.

Six hundred delegates representing 40,000 police in 194 cities, counties, towns and villages will attend the meeting, the conference announcement said.

Carton said police in 35 localities in the state already have won the 40-hour week as a result of legislation sponsored by the conference at Albany.

The announcement said "localities adopted the reduced work week on a voluntary basis as a result of approval of the bill in the Assembly, even though the Senate failed to concur. Thirty-six others have enacted a 44-hour week."

Carton is president of the National Police Conference and of the New York City Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

Kelly Says B'way

rescued by Patrolman Louis Sapp who waded in chest high, then returned to duty with his clothes dripping. Sapp's service revolver had to be soaked in oil overnight to prevent rust.

Lieut. William J. Leonard and Sgt. Robert Murphy were deluged with phone calls at police headquarters with reports of floods and other storm damage, and Edward Geschwinder at the office of the Department of Public Works was just as busy with complaints.

Eight Crews Work

Geschwinder began rounding up storm crews early, but because of the Labor Day holiday many city employes could not be contacted immediately. Finally there were eight crews working under direction of Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding and Max Oppenheimer, his assistant.

Because both lines were so busy, Kelly acted as laisson between police headquarters and the DPW office to keep the schedule clear.

When Broadway was barricaded yesterday, Kelly and Police Chief Ray Van Buren sent police patrols to turn on traffic lights along the former detour route that was used during the underpass construction, to prevent traffic jams and possible accidents.

Burger Assists Vogt

One patrolman, Guernsey Burgher, Sr., a mechanically inclined officer assisted Edward Vogt, DPW technician, in getting the traffic lights working immediately and went a bit further to help the storm crews by opening clogged catch basins with a hoe he carried in a patrol car.

Many citizens, realizing the stress and pressure under which city employes worked, also took care of sewer openings to protect properties in the vicinity.

Tours Flood Areas

The alderman-at-large also went to flood scenes and was kept busy until after 9 p. m. "I couldn't reach them all," he said, "but the crews working under the handicap of the heaviest storm in a long time did what they could in the way of relief and deserve commendation."

Men answering phones promised help as soon as possible to nervous and perplexed citizens eager for immediate assistance, which was impossible for everybody at once.

"The underpass is one of the major problems," Kelly stressed, "and action should be taken immediately to correct the flood conditions before the winter snows arrive, then melt in the spring to form more water hazards and consequential slippery conditions from ice formations."

Woman Held for Assault

Mrs. Ruth Mercurio, 36, Tillson, was arrested Sunday at Tillson by Deputy Sheriff Earl Conro on a warrant charging assault, second degree. She was held by Justice Albert for grand jury action. On Sunday her husband came to visit the children and was ordered off the place. When he refused to go Mrs. Mercurio allegedly threatened him with a rifle.

Men answering phones promised help as soon as possible to nervous and perplexed citizens eager for immediate assistance, which was impossible for everybody at once.

"The underpass is one of the major problems," Kelly stressed, "and action should be taken immediately to correct the flood conditions before the winter snows arrive, then melt in the spring to form more water hazards and consequential slippery conditions from ice formations."

Takes Offender's Advice

Rangoon, Burma (AP)—An old man with no previous convictions appeared in court on a charge of riding a bicycle against traffic regulations. Asked if he had anything to say, he said, "I do not quite know what to say, Sir, what would you say if you were in my place?" he asked a lawyer nearby. The magistrate smiled. "Tell me," he addressed the old man, "what would you say if you were in my place?" In a flash came the answer: "Old man you are discharged." And he was.

TWO BEVERAGES AT WEDDING

A mother writes: "My daughter is to be married soon and her fiance's family do not approve of anything strong to drink. Our friends and relatives, on the other hand, would think it very strange, if we didn't serve at least one glass of champagne in which to toast the bride and groom. Would it be proper to serve champagne knowing his family disapprove? If not, what do you suggest as a substitute?

Since you are giving the wedding and you are the host, you should serve what you consider correct. You should, however, have punch, sparkling gingerale or other nonalcoholic beverage for the "drys."

"I'll Call Later"

Dear Mrs. Post: When a friend, or neighbor, stops by in the afternoon to pay me a visit, and someone calls on the telephone whom I known from experience will talk on and on, is it proper to tell her, "I can't talk now but I" call back later," or might this be considered rude to the person calling? This happens to me quite often and I never know how to handle the situation tactfully.

Answer: People who are really busy have to make this reply many times.

Man Tips Hat

Dear Mrs. Post: The other day my son and I were walking down the street when a man I know came toward us. He tipped his hat to me and said good-day, but did not stop. My son did not tip his hat in return. I told him that he should have, but he said it was not at all necessary. Will you please tell me who is right?

Answer: You are. A man always tips his hat when the lady he is walking with is bowed to—whether he knows the person or not.

Dear Mrs. Post: When a family is dining alone, it is proper for the husband to read his newspaper during the meal?

Answer: Breakfast, yes—other meals, no!

Quiz of Employes Begins in Swindle

Mineola, Sept. 2 (AP)—Investigators plan to start questioning today all employes and officials in a Long Island bank allegedly swindled of $450,000 by a woman manufacturer.

However, the highest officer—bank president William H. Abel—still was in critical condition from a self-inflicted bullet wound and may not be well enough to undergo questioning for several days, a Nassau Hospital spokesman said.

The plans to question employes of the bank, the Central National Bank of Mineola, were announced yesterday by the Nassau county district attorney's office.

Abel, 45, shot himself near the heart Friday a few hours before he was to be questioned concerning the alleged swindle by Mrs. Lillian B. Robinson, 47. He was the complainant against her.

She was arrested last Wednesday and is now free in $10,000 bail on a charge of second degree forgery. She was accused of getting hundreds of loans for phony home improvement jobs in the past four years for her two house products companies.

Assistant District Attorney Philip Huntingdon questioned a Robinson employe over the weekend, Thomas H. Dunican, of West Bethpage, N. Y., who reported voluntarily after hearing an allegation he had been blackmailing Mrs. Robinson.

Huntingdon said Dunican was not implicated in the case. The allegation was made in a State Supreme Court civil case by a bank attorney quoting Mrs. Robinson.

Arthur Rubin Shares In Brother's Estate

New York, Sept. 2 (Special)—The estate left by the late Harold Rubin, silk concern executive, in which Arthur Rubin, a brother, of Olive Bridge shares, was appraised at $807,035, gross value, and $691,951, net, in a report filed here today by the State Transfer Tax Department. Stocks and bonds amounted to $561,431.

After distribution of about $50,000 in specific bequests, one-ninth the balance goes to the Olive Bridge brother. The balance is left to other relatives.

Rubin, vice-president, secretary and a director of the American Silk Mills, Inc., New York, died in Hollywood, Fla., on May 3, 1949, at the age of 48. He was a founder and director of the American Foundation for High Blood Pressure. He was the son of the late Edward Rubin, a founder of American Silk.

Oklahoma Wins Competition With Cloudburst, Attracts Large Audience at Broadway Opening

The winds and rains of hurricane force lashing the city yesterday, did not deter a large and enthusiastic audience from attending the opening performances of Oklahoma at the Walter Reade Broadway Theatre. Described as "the world's greatest musical hit," the popular musical comedy being presented by the Theatre Guild National Company will have its final performance tonight at 8:30 p. m. The box office at the theatre opened at noon today.

The current production, with an outstanding cast including 75 singing stars and dancers, is identical to that presented at the St. James Theatre in New York City in 1943.

Afternoon and evening audiences alike thrilled to the lovely voice and delightful personality of Florence Henderson, playing the role of Laurey. Her solos and duets with Ralph Lowe received the hearty approval of the listeners.

Ralph Lowe's "tongue in cheek" humor coupled with his fine voice made a great hit in his portrayal of Curly McClain.

Those in the principal roles, the singers and dancers, and an excellent orchestra, are all to be commended for turning in superior performances.

Aviation Exhibit Closes in Detroit

Detroit, Sept. 2 (AP)—The ill-fated International Aviation Exposition closed its three-day run at nearby Wayne-Major Airport Monday in a torrential downpour.

Dogged by ill luck from the beginning, the program of army, navy and air force demonstrations came to an abrupt halt in a sudden storm that featured driving rain, hail and winds upwards of 50 miles an hour.

The crowd, estimated at 75,000 was drenched before it could find shelter. The field was turned into mud and many of the planes in the stationary exhibit were buffeted and damaged.

Struck and killed by lightning was Harry Withers, 32, a spectator at the show.

Which way

WHETHER YOU SEE EYE-TO-EYE with Adlai or Ike, one thing is certain:

From now till November 4th, you'll want to know how they look at all the big issues . . .

Europe . . . Korea . . . taxes . . . controls . . . income . . . all the problems that reach into your daily life here in our town.

And to help you weigh each candidate day by day as each issue comes to light—you turn to your newspaper. Just as you've turned to it daily for dozens of other reasons since you first learned to read.

For the latest facts . . . for goings-on in our town, our state, our entire world . . . to see what's for fun and what's for sale. Not only what—but where and when and how much it costs.

And in the newspaper we read all about it...or only as much as we want...as many times as we want. We read any time we choose...any place we choose.

That's why nearly everybody reads the newspaper nearly every day.

That's why so many people who sell advertised products insist that they be advertised in newspapers.

Because in newspapers an advertising message has a chance to reach all people who can buy. Not just sports fans or quiz fans or music fans or comedy fans . . . but everybody.

That's why all advertisers—both "national" and retail—invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising.

The newspaper is first with the most news . . . first with the most people . . . first with the most advertisers.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Quiz of Employes Begins in Swindle

Mineola, Sept. 2 (AP)—Investigators plan to start questioning today all employes and officials in a Long Island bank allegedly swindled of $450,000 by a woman manufacturer.

However, the highest officer—bank president William H. Abel—still was in critical condition from a self-inflicted bullet wound and may not be well enough to undergo questioning for several days, a Nassau Hospital spokesman said.

The plans to question employes of the bank, the Central National Bank of Mineola, were announced yesterday by the Nassau county district attorney's office.

Abel, 45, shot himself near the heart Friday a few hours before he was to be questioned concerning the alleged swindle by Mrs. Lillian B. Robinson, 47. He was the complainant against her.

She was arrested last Wednesday and is now free in $10,000 bail on a charge of second degree forgery. She was accused of getting hundreds of loans for phony home improvement jobs in the past four years for her two house products companies.

Assistant District Attorney Philip Huntingdon questioned a Robinson employe over the weekend, Thomas H. Dunican, of West Bethpage, N. Y., who reported voluntarily after hearing an allegation he had been blackmailing Mrs. Robinson.

Huntingdon said Dunican was not implicated in the case. The allegation was made in a State Supreme Court civil case by a bank attorney quoting Mrs. Robinson.

Arthur Rubin Shares In Brother's Estate

New York, Sept. 2 (Special)—The estate left by the late Harold Rubin, silk concern executive, in which Arthur Rubin, a brother, of Olive Bridge shares, was appraised at $807,035, gross value, and $691,951, net, in a report filed here today by the State Transfer Tax Department. Stocks and bonds amounted to $561,431.

After distribution of about $50,000 in specific bequests, one-ninth the balance goes to the Olive Bridge brother. The balance is left to other relatives.

Rubin, vice-president, secretary and a director of the American Silk Mills, Inc., New York, died in Hollywood, Fla., on May 3, 1949, at the age of 48. He was a founder and director of the American Foundation for High Blood Pressure. He was the son of the late Edward Rubin, a founder of American Silk.

Oklahoma Wins Competition With Cloudburst, Attracts Large Audience at Broadway Opening

The winds and rains of hurricane force lashing the city yesterday, did not deter a large and enthusiastic audience from attending the opening performances of Oklahoma at the Walter Reade Broadway Theatre. Described as "the world's greatest musical hit," the popular musical comedy being presented by the Theatre Guild National Company will have its final performance tonight at 8:30 p. m. The box office at the theatre opened at noon today.

The current production, with an outstanding cast including 75 singing stars and dancers, is identical to that presented at the St. James Theatre in New York City in 1943.

Afternoon and evening audiences alike thrilled to the lovely voice and delightful personality of Florence Henderson, playing the role of Laurey. Her solos and duets with Ralph Lowe received the hearty approval of the listeners.

Ralph Lowe's "tongue in cheek" humor coupled with his fine voice made a great hit in his portrayal of Curly McClain.

Those in the principal roles, the singers and dancers, and an excellent orchestra, are all to be commended for turning in superior performances.

The large cast of principals included Mary Marlo as Aunt Eller; Charles Hart, Cord Elam; Charles Scott, Fred; John Addis, Slim; Victor Griffin, Will Parker; Alfred Cibelli, Jr., Jud Fray; Jacquelin Daniels, Ado Annie Carnes; Harold Gary, Ali Hakim; Judy Rawlings, Gertie Cummings; Margery Beddow, Ellen; Marigene Addis, Kate; Jean Bledsoe, Sylvie; Marquita Living, Armina; Anita Berman, Aggie; Owen Martin, Andrew Carnes; Victor Reilley, Chalmers; and Bob Lord as Mike. Alfred Cibelli had the distinction of having played the same role of Jud with the originial cast in New York.

Oklahoma with its sparkling music, colorful costumes and scenery, is the first of the productions to be presented by the Theatre Guild at the Walter Reade theatres.

Aviation Exhibit Closes in Detroit

Detroit, Sept. 2 (AP)—The ill-fated International Aviation Exposition closed its three-day run at nearby Wayne-Major Airport Monday in a torrential downpour.

Dogged by ill luck from the beginning, the program of army, navy and air force demonstrations came to an abrupt halt in a sudden storm that featured driving rain, hail and winds upwards of 50 miles an hour.

The crowd, estimated at 75,000 was drenched before it could find shelter. The field was turned into mud and many of the planes in the stationary exhibit were buffeted and damaged.

Struck and killed by lightning was Harry Withers, 32, a spectator at the show.

Before the storm struck Steve Wittman, 48 year old operator of the Winnebago County Airport near Oshkosh, Wis., flew to victory in the sixth Continental Motors Trophy race for midget planes.

Fraternal League Stars Lose in Semi-Finals of Bridgeport Tourney

Unearned Runs Give Stamford 2-1 Win

The Fraternal Youth League All Stars were eliminated in the semi-final bracket of the National Junior Baseball League invitation tournament Saturday at Bridgeport, Conn.

It was a crushing loss for the FYL Stars and Bruce Bechtold, who had pitched shutout ball for six innings against Stamford, Conn.

A costly error in the bottom of the seventh, after the side should have been retired, opened the door to a pair of unearned Stamford runs that resolved the issue, 2 to 1, in favor of the Nutmegers.

Bechtold permitted only two hits and fanned 10 and had driven in Kingston's lone run off Charles Willard in the sixth inning when the collapse occurred.

Win Third Place

But the trip was not a complete loss. The FYL tossers came home with a third-place trophy. They tied Springfield, Mass., in a three-inning game, 0-0, halted by rain. By agreement of tournament officials and both managers it was decided to give each team a trophy. Jack Houghtaling accepted the trophy in behalf of his teammates.

Jack Houghtaling's walk and Bechtold's ringing double to right center sent Kingston ahead 1-0 in the sixth inning. It looked like a big run at that time, with Bechtold and Willard locked in a sensational schoolboy pitching classic. Willard fanned a dozen.

Bechtold did not permit a hit until the fourth inning and there was only one safety in the two-run rally in the seventh. He got by a terrific jam in the fourth when Stamford loaded the bases on a hit, hit batsman and an eror. Don Ferraro threw a runner out at the plate, Bechtold fanned a batter and Ernie Crescio popped to short left field, the runners holding after the catch.

Ed Hearst picked up half of Kingston's hits off Willard with two singles. Bechtold's double was the lone extra base hit of the game and Ronnie Jansen had the other single. Both Stamford safeties were singletons.

Sideliners—Kingston's defeat in the semi-finals put them in the consolation game against Springfield Sunday at 5:30 p. m. Previously they had attended a luncheon at league headquarters and heard Vernon Lefty Gomez, the former Yankee pitching star, and Neal Ball, who is credited with making the first unassisted triple play in major league history. . . . Bob Maines, the hard hitting Kingston centerfielder, made a brilliant catch in the first inning and Don Ferraro came up with classy plays at shortstop in the third and fourth innings against Stamford. Maines was hit between the shoulder blades with a pitched ball in the second inning. He shook it off but the after effects seemed to bother his swing. This was a big disappointment to the Kingston players who had watched Maines belt them far and often in the batting practice. He was replaced by George Hamilton in the seventh. Maines was taken to Emergency Hospital for X-rays as a precautionary measure but the X-rays revealed no serious injury. The consolation trophy stands 24-inches high. Kingston went hitless in the three-inning game with Springfield. The Bay Staters picked up two hits off Jack Houghtaling, who fanned four. The Springfield catcher's name was Bill Kingston. Manager Joe Messinger and Coach Frank Reis did a nice job of handling all details of the trip.

VanAken and Boice Tied After 18 Holes in City Golf

Bill Van Aken of Wiltwyck and Alvin Boice of Twaalfskill finished all-even after 18 rainswept holes in the first half of the seventh annual Labor Day, 36-hole, city golf championship at Wiltwyck.

For 18 holes the two club champions sloshed through the worst playing conditions in the history of the playoff.

The driving rains that wiped out all sports activity in the area forced a postponement of the second round scheduled at Twaalfskill in the afternoon.

Seek USGA Ruling

The postponement posed a question for the tournament committees and the United States Golf Association has been asked to make a ruling on the balance of the match.

The official USGA rules stipulate that in the event a match play contest is interrupted by reason of weather or other factors, it shall be resumed from the point of interruption with the score standing as of that time.

In medal play, which does not figure in the playoff, everything is wiped from the record books and the players resume from scratch.

Since the book rule makes no stipulation for a playoff of this nature, where two clubs are involved, the USGA has been asked to rule whether:

1. The match shall be replayed in its entirety.
2. The match shall pick up from the point of interruption.

If the USGA rules that the whole match must be re-played, the first 18 holes will be staged at Wiltwyck on Saturday, Sept. 6, at 10 a. m., and the second 18 at 2 p. m., at Twaalfskill.

Large Crowd Out

The miserable weather conditions did not dampen the spirits of a surprisingly large number of spectators who stationed themselves at vantage points along the course to witness the battle. The braver souls mushed along behind the players.

Both players showed the effect of the weather conditions which affected their wood shots, caused them to put on and take off their coats incessantly and caused water to drip off the cap peaks while they were in the act of lining up putts. Briefly, it was the worst conditions under which any championship match has ever been played in Kingston.

The medal scores reflect the ordinary play but under the circumstances, Van Aken and Boice waged a grim duel. Experts figure that if only 18 more holes are to be played Boice won a vital decision in holding Van Aken even on the Wiltwyck course.

The match was squared on the 17th hole when Boice drove an iron shot 10 feet under the pin and was down in regulation three to Van Aken's four. They had halved seven holes in a row before Van Aken took the 11th with a par-3. Van Aken went 1-up with a "4" on the 16th hole as Boice pitched strongly across the green and then missed a short putt going for the par.

All even off the 18th tee, they both got into trouble on the hole but both narrowly missed canning chip shots that would have given either the edge.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

If you attended either or both of the baseball promotions at municipal stadium during the past two weeks, you must have felt engulfed in the myriad of echoes that reverberated among the concrete runways.

The Brooklyn Stars of Tomorrow vs. the Kingston Juniors and the Police doubleheader were first line attractions featuring local talent. Both were highly publicized and given the heavy hand of intensified pre-game ticket sales.

So what happens? A handful of fans show up. Both games should have packed municipal stadium to the rafters, yet the actual attendance was meagre and disappointing.

Those who found their way to municipal stadium were rewarded with two excellent promotions. The kids staged a great game against Brooklyn until a late-inning lapse enabled the Dodger stars of the future to break through.

In all the years of senior Police contests, we never saw a better exhibition than Wednesday's against Newburgh. Manager Lennie Elsworth's tossers hit the ball sharply, fielded cleanly except for a momentary lapse now and then and side-arming Bud Loeffler pitched like one of those lads working their way up the Cardinal chain.

Certainly, the pitching duel between Bruce Bechtold of the junior Police squad of the FYL and the lad from Newburgh was a schoolboy classic, if the fans ever saw one.

Perhaps, as a disgruntled element insists, the newspapers and radio were at fault. They merely gave reams of copy, black headlines, pictures and thousands of words, all free, to the cause. The press and radio are popular scapegoats for a segment of diehards who flinch from the truth.

And the tragic truth about baseball is that our fans have become utterly blase with respect to local promotions. Some of them will stand high on the cracker barrel and tell you that what Kingston needs is "local baseball, with local players. . . ."

The newspapers and radio can serve only one function. They herald the coming of the baseball and other professional sports promotions. They pound away, sometimes giving space far beyond the actual value of the games, but they do it with a sense of civic pride and with a genuine desire to help the cause. They don't always agree with the manner in which some of thes promotions are handled, but they keep pouring black ink and glib tongues on the winding sea that is supposed to lead to the sports Utopia.

Unfortunately the sea of written and spoken words always winds up in the backwash of frustration.

Our baseball fans have become calloused, blase, utterly indifferent to the fate of the national pastime in Kingston. For that reason, we say, let it rest for a few years.

Today's Little League, Fraternal Youth Leagues and the Pony League are the only hope for baseball of the future. With major league empires cracking under the impact of staggering financial deficits and minor league ball slowly succumbing to the tentacles of the TV octopus, these leagues are the last barrier against a complete national collapse of the game.

Even the astute Branch Rickey, the most powerful mind in baseball today, admits these small fry circuits make it possible to pray that the game will survive.

A well known fan and prominent citizen who has followed Kingston baseball since the original Colonials right through the lean 30s to the Kingston Recreations called the turn a few days ago.

"I went to the kid game and the police doubleheader," he said, "and I was amazed by the small crowds. I looked around and I couldn't find any of the 'old timers.' They used to sit around in the same section with me. Now there wasn't a single one around. What happened?"

As one cynic said in the vast emptiness of municipal stadium the night of the Brooklyn game: "Why try to revive the corpse? Why not forget it for a couple of years. Then if the fans want baseball badly enough, they'll make it known."

The press and radio can hammer about the super-duper attractions about to unfold at the stadium. The promoter works feverishly to line up a team and a suitable opponent. He cuts expenses to the bone. He prays for good weather and then sits back to wait and pray some more. What happens? A handful of Faithful Few show up. And he reaches for the ball point with the red crayon.

We are living in a world of videos. The more popular TV becomes, the clearer the reception, the more powerful the sets, the greater the temptation to stay home and enjoy major league baseball in the luxury and comfort of your own living room or TV den. Let's face it.

Brooklyn — Rocky Castellani, 159¾, Luzerne, Pa., outpointed Johnny Lombardo, 153, Mt. Carmel, Pa. (10).

At It Again

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 2 (AP)—Harry (Kid) Matthews, the stylist Seattle heavyweight, flattened Tiger Ted Lowry of New Bedford, Mass., in 36 seconds of the fifth round last night, in winning his first fight since he was kayoed by Rocky Marciano last month. Matthews weighed 179 and Lowry 178.

THROUGH WIND, RAIN AND SLUSH THESE WOODSTOCK GOLFERS . . . .

Woodstock Country Club finalists, Boyer Gonzales and Walter Seaton, played 32 holes through Monday's blinding rainstorm to complete the championship match. Gonzales proved a better mudder and won 5 and 4 to successfully defend his club title. This weird scene on the ninth hole at Woodstock was through the courtesy of the Woodstock tournament committee and not Alfred Hitchcock. It shows Ganzales, right, in the act of putting on the water-soaked green. With a six-iron, no doubt. Walter Seaton, the vanquished, looks on from the left. (Wagenfohr Photo).

The SCOREBoard

Jupiter Pluvius may have a hand in deciding the American League pennant this year.

No, Jupiter Pluvius is not another castoff plucked by the New York Yankees for their stretch drive although he proved to be as helpful to the world champions as Ray Scarborough, the refugee from the Boston Red Sox.

The two combined to increase the Yankees' first place margin to two and a half games over Cleveland last night. Scarborough, purchased last week from the Red Sox, handcuffed his former mates with three hits, pitching the New Yorkers to a 5-1 triumph.

Mr. J. P., otherwise known as Old Man Rain, helped the St. Louis Browns defeat Cleveland, 2-1, in the second game of the doubleheader after the Indians had won the opener, 9-3.

This is how ruthless Old Man Rain finally succeeded in dampening the Labor Day holiday spirits of the luckless Indians. After halting the nightcap for an hour and 12 minutes in the bottom half of the fifth inning with the home team Brownies ahead, 2-1, the rain finally let up.

Tough Break

St. Louis failed to score in the fifth and the Indians rallied for three runs in the top half of the sixth to take a 4-2 lead. As the Browns prepared to bat in their half of the sixth, another rain storm broke and this time there was no let-up. As a result, the three runs were wiped out and the score reverted back to the fifth inning with St. Louis winning, 2-1.

Rain washed out Brooklyn's scheduled twin bill in Philadelphia but the Dodgers retained their nine game lead in the National League as the second place New York Giants divided a double-header in Boston. The Braves came back to win the second game, 5-1, after the Giants had captured the opener, 3-1.

In addition to washing out the scheduled twin bill between the Detroit Tigers and White Sox in Chicago, the rain, which swept the Eastern Seaboard, forced the Yankees and Red Sox to call off their two afternoon games in New York.

The Yankees, however, managed to salvage something by playing one of the games in the evening to mark the first time a Labor Day game ever was played at night. But for a first inning home run by Billy Goodman, Scarborough would have had a shutout.

The Yankees collected eight hits, five off loser Ellis Kinder, who hurled the first three innings.

Teams Split

Splits marked all other doubleheaders. Philadelphia's fourth place Athletics won a 10-inning 9-5 opener from Washington but the Senators came back to take the nightcap, 4-2.

Cincinnati emerged with a split, winning the second game, 3-2 after the St. Louis Cardinals had walked off with a 6-0 opening win. Chicago's Cubs thrashed Pittsburgh, 6-0, but the Pirates won the second game, 5-4.

Early Wynn registered his 18th triumph as the Indians backed him with a 14-hit attack against loser Gene Bearden and Tommy Byrne. Satchell Paige went the curtailed distance to register his 10th victory against nine defeats in the nightcap.

Rookie righthander Ernie Johnson pitched a seven-hitter for the Braves, who knocked out Giants starter Larry Jansen in the first inning of the nightcap. The Giants took the opener on Max Lanier's four-hit hurling.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Clint Courtney, Browns—The rookie catcher homered with one on to account for all St. Louis runs in the Browns' 2-1 victory over Cleveland in the abbreviated second game called after five innings because of rain. The Indians took the opener, 9-3.

Pitching: Ray Scarborough, Yankees—The veteran righthander, cast adrift by Boston a week ago, turned on his former teammates with a three-hitter as the Yankees defeated the Red Sox, 5-1, in the first night game ever played on Labor Day.

Fraternal League Stars Lose in Semi-Finals of Bridgeport Tourney

Unearned Runs Give Stamford 2-1 Win

The Fraternal Youth League All Stars were eliminated in the semi-final bracket of the National Junior Baseball League invitation tournament Saturday at Bridgeport, Conn.

It was a crushing loss for the FYL Stars and Bruce Bechtold, who had pitched shutout ball for six innings against Stamford, Conn.

A costly error in the bottom of the seventh, after the side should have been retired, opened the door to a pair of unearned Stamford runs that resolved the issue, 2 to 1, in favor of the Nutmegers.

Bechtold permitted only two hits and fanned 10 and had driven in Kingston's lone run off Charles Willard in the sixth inning when the collapse occurred.

Win Third Place

But the trip was not a complete loss. The FYL tossers came home with a third-place trophy. They tied Springfield, Mass., in a three-inning game, 0-0, halted by rain. By agreement of tournament officials and both managers it was decided to give each team a trophy. Jack Houghtaling accepted the trophy in behalf of his teammates.

Jack Houghtaling's walk and Bechtold's ringing double to right center sent Kingston ahead 1-0 in the sixth inning. It looked like a big run at that time, with Bechtold and Willard locked in a sensational schoolboy pitching classic. Willard fanned a dozen.

Bechtold did not permit a hit until the fourth inning and there was only one safety in the two-run rally in the seventh. He got by a terrific jam in the fourth when Stamford loaded the bases on a hit, hit batsman and an eror. Don Ferraro threw a runner out at the plate, Bechtold fanned a batter and Ernie Crescio popped to short left field, the runners holding after the catch.

Ed Hearst picked up half of Kingston's hits off Willard with two singles. Bechtold's double was the lone extra base hit of the game and Ronnie Jansen had the other single. Both Stamford safeties were singletons.

Sideliners—Kingston's defeat in the semi-finals put them in the consolation game against Springfield Sunday at 5:30 p. m. Previously they had attended a luncheon at league headquarters and heard Vernon Lefty Gomez, the former Yankee pitching star, and Neal Bail, who is credited with making the first unassisted triple play in major league history. . . . Bob Maines, the hard hitting Kingston centerfielder, made a brilliant catch in the first inning and Don Ferraro came up with classy plays at shortstop in the third and fourth innings against Stamford. Maines was hit between the shoulder blades with a pitched ball in the second inning. He shook it off but the after effects seemed to bother his swing. This was a big disappointment to the Kingston players who had watched Maines belt them far and often in the batting practice. He was replaced by George Hamilton in the seventh. Maines was taken to Emergency Hospital for X-rays as a precautionary measure but the X-rays revealed no serious injury. The consolation trophy stands 24-inches high. Kingston went hitless in the three-inning game with Springfield. The Bay Staters picked up two hits off Jack Houghtaling, who fanned four. The Springfield catcher's name was Bill Kingston. Manager Joe Messinger and Coach Frank Reis did a nice job of handling all details of the trip.

VanAken and Boice Tied After 18 Holes in City Golf

Bill Van Aken of Wiltwyck and Alvin Boice of Twaalfskill finished all-even after 18 rainswept holes in the first half of the seventh annual Labor Day, 36-hole, city golf championship at Wiltwyck.

For 18 holes the two club champions sloshed through the worst playing conditions in the history of the playoff.

The driving rains that wiped out all sports activity in the area forced a postponement of the second round scheduled at Twaalfskill in the afternoon.

Seek USGA Ruling

The postponement posed a question for the tournament committees and the United States Golf Association has been asked to make a ruling on the balance of the match.

The official USGA rules stipulate that in the event a match play contest is interrupted by reason of weather or other factors, it shall be resumed from the point of interruption with the score standing as of that time.

In medal play, which does not figure in the playoff, everything is wiped from the record books and the players resume from scratch.

Since the book rule makes no stipulation for a playoff of this nature, where two clubs are involved, the USGA has been asked to rule whether:

1. The match shall be replayed in its entirety.

2. The match shall pick up from the point of interruption.

If the USGA rules that the whole match must be re-played, the first 18 holes will be staged at Wiltwyck on Saturday, Sept. 6, at 10 a. m., and the second 18 at 2 p. m., at Twaalfskill.

Large Crowd Out

The miserable weather conditions did not dampen the spirits of a surprisingly large number of spectators who stationed themselves at vantage points along the course to witness the battle. The braver souls mushed along behind the players.

Both players showed the effect of the weather conditions which affected their wood shots, caused them to put on and take off their coats incessantly and caused water to drip off the cap peaks while they were in the act of lining up putts. Briefly, it was the worst conditions under which any championship match has ever been played in Kingston.

The medal scores reflect the ordinary play but under the circumstances, Van Aken and Boice waged a grim duel. Experts figure that if only 18 more holes are to be played Boice won a vital decision in holding Van Aken even on the Wiltwyck course.

The match was squared on the 17th hole when Boice drove an iron shot 10 feet under the pin and was down in regulation three to Van Aken's four. They had halved seven holes in a row before Van Aken took the 11th with a par-3. Van Aken went 1-up with a "4" on the 16th hole as Boice pitched strongly across the green and then missed a short putt going for the par.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

If you attended either or both of the baseball promotions at municipal stadium during the past two weeks, you must have felt engulfed in the myriad of echoes that reverberated among the concrete runways.

The Brooklyn Stars of Tomorrow vs. the Kingston Juniors and the Police doubleheader were first line attractions featuring local talent. Both were highly publicized and given the heavy hand of intensified pre-game ticket sales.

So what happens? A handful of fans show up. Both games should have packed municipal stadium to the rafters, yet the actual attendance was meagre and disappointing.

Those who found their way to municipal stadium were rewarded with two excellent promotions. The kids staged a great game against Brooklyn until a late-inning lapse enabled the Dodger stars of the future to break through.

In all the years of senior Police contests, we never saw a better exhibition than Wednesday's against Newburgh. Manager Lennie Elsworth's tossers hit the ball sharply, fielded cleanly except for a momentary lapse now and then and side-arming Bud Loeffler pitched like one of those lads working their way up the Cardinal chain.

Certainly, the pitching duel between Bruce Bechtold of the junior Police squad of the FYL and the lad from Newburgh was a schoolboy classic, if the fans ever saw one.

Perhaps, as a disgruntled element insists, the newspapers and radio were at fault. They merely gave reams of copy, black headlines, pictures and thousands of words, all free, to the cause. The press and radio are popular scapegoats for a segment of diehards who flinch from the truth.

And the tragic truth about baseball is that our fans have become utterly blase with respect to local promotions. Some of them will stand high on the cracker barrel and tell you that what Kingston needs is "local baseball, with local players. . . ."

The newspapers and radio can serve only one function. They herald the coming of the baseball and other professional sports promotions. They pound away, sometimes giving space far beyond the actual value of the games, but they do it with a sense of civic pride and with a genuine desire to help the cause. They don't always agree with the manner in which some of thes promotions are handled, but they keep pouring black ink and glib tongues on the winding sea that is supposed to lead to the sports Utopia.

Unfortunately the sea of written and spoken words always winds up in the backwash of frustration.

Our baseball fans have become calloused, blase, utterly indifferent to the fate of the national pastime in Kingston. For that reason, we say, let it rest for a few years.

Today's Little League, Fraternal Youth Leagues and the Pony League are the only hope for baseball of the future. With major league empires cracking under the impact of staggering financial deficits and minor league ball slowly succumbing to the tentacles of the TV octopus, these leagues are the last barrier against a complete national collapse of the game.

Even the astute Branch Rickey, the most powerful mind in baseball today, admits these small fry circuits make it possible to pray that the game will survive.

A well known fan and prominent citizen who has followed Kingston baseball since the original Colonials right through the lean 30s to the Kingston Recreations called the turn a few days ago.

"I went to the kid game and the police doubleheader," he said, "and I was amazed by the small crowds. I looked around and I couldn't find any of the 'old timers.' They used to sit around in the same section with me. Now there wasn't a single one around. What happened?"

As one cynic said in the vast emptiness of municipal stadium the night of the Brooklyn game: "Why try to revive the corpse? Why not forget it for a couple of years. Then if the fans want baseball badly enough, they'll make it known."

The press and radio can hammer about the super-duper attractions about to unfold at the stadium. The promoter works feverishly to line up a team and a suitable opponent. He cuts expenses to the bone. He prays for good weather and then sits back to wait and pray some more. What happens? A handful of Faithful Few show up. And he reaches for the ball point with the red crayon.

We are living in a world of videos. The more popular TV becomes, the clearer the reception, the more powerful the sets, the greater the temptation to stay home and enjoy major league baseball in the luxury and comfort of your own living room or TV den. Let's face it.

Fights Last Night

(By The Associated Press)

Boise, Idaho—Harry Matthews, 179, Seattle, knocked out Tiger Ted Lowery, 178, New Bedford, Mass. (5).

Brooklyn — Rocky Castellani, 159¾, Luzerne, Pa., outpointed Johnny Lombardo, 153, Mt. Carmel, Pa. (10).

At It Again

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 2 (AP)—Harry (Kid) Matthews, the stylist Seattle heavyweight, flattened Tiger Ted Lowry of New Bedford, Mass., in 36 seconds of the fifth round last night, in winning his first fight since he was kayoed by Rocky Marciano last month. Matthews weighed 179 and Lowry 178.

PRIZE DISPLAY OF ASHOKAN SMALL MOUTH BASS

THROUGH WIND, RAIN AND SLUSH THESE WOODSTOCK GOLFERS . . . .

Woodstock Country Club finalists, Boyer Gonzales and Walter Seaton, played 32 holes through Monday's blinding rainstorm to complete the championship match. Gonzales proved a better mudder and won 5 and 4 to successfully defend his club title. This weird scene on the ninth hole at Woodstock was through the courtesy of the Woodstock tournament committee and not Alfred Hitchcock. It shows Ganzales, right, in the act of putting on the water-soaked green. With a six-iron, no doubt. Walter Seaton, the vanquished, looks on from the left. (Wagenfohr Photo).

The SCOREBoard

Jupiter Pluvius may have a hand in deciding the American League pennant this year.

No, Jupiter Pluvius is not another castoff plucked by the New York Yankees for their stretch drive although he proved to be as helpful to the world champions as Ray Scarborough, the refugee from the Boston Red Sox.

The two combined to increase the Yankees' first place margin to two and a half games over Cleveland last night. Scarborough, purchased last week from the Red Sox, handcuffed his former mates with three hits, pitching the New Yorkers to a 5-1 triumph.

Mr. J. P., otherwise known as Old Man Rain, helped the St. Louis Browns defeat Cleveland, 2-1, in the second game of the doubleheader after the Indians had won the opener, 9-3.

This is how ruthless Old Man Rain finally succeeded in dampening the Labor Day holiday spirits of the luckless Indians. After halting the nightcap for an hour and 12 minutes in the bottom half of the fifth inning with the home team Brownies ahead, 2-1, the rain finally let up.

Tough Break

St. Louis failed to score in the fifth and the Indians rallied for three runs in the top half of the sixth to take a 4-2 lead. As the Browns prepared to bat in their half of the sixth, another rain storm broke and this time there was no let-up. As a result, the three runs were wiped out and the score reverted back to the fifth inning with St. Louis winning, 2-1.

Rain washed out Brooklyn's scheduled twin bill in Philadelphia but the Dodgers retained their nine game lead in the National League as the second place New York Giants divided a double-header in Boston. The Braves came back to win the second game, 5-1, after the Giants had captured the opener, 3-1.

In addition to washing out the scheduled twin bill between the Detroit Tigers and White Sox in Chicago, the rain, which swept the Eastern Seaboard, forced the Yankees and Red Sox to call off their two afternoon games in New York.

The Yankees, however, managed to salvage something by playing one of the games in the evening to mark the first time a Labor Day game ever was played at night. But for a first inning home run by Billy Goodman, Scarborough would have had a shutout.

The Yankees collected eight hits, five off loser Ellis Kinder, who hurled the first three innings.

Teams Split

Splits marked all other doubleheaders. Philadelphia's fourth place Athletics won a 10-inning 9-5 opener from Washington but the Senators came back to take the nightcap, 4-2.

Cincinnati emerged with a split, winning the second game, 3-2 after the St. Louis Cardinals had walked off with a 6-0 opening win. Chicago's Cubs thrashed Pittsburgh, 6-0, but the Pirates won the second game, 5-4.

Early Wynn registered his 18th triumph as the Indians backed him with a 14-hit attack against loser Gene Bearden and Tommy Byrne. Satchell Paige went the curtailed distance to register his 10th victory against nine defeats in the nightcap.

Rookie righthander Ernie Johnson pitched a seven-hitter for the Braves, who knocked out Giants starter Larry Jansen in the first inning of the nightcap. The Giants took the opener on Max Lanier's four-hit hurling.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Clint Courtney, Browns—The rookie catcher homered with one on to account for all St. Louis runs in the Browns' 2-1 victory over Cleveland in the abbreviated second game called after five innings because of rain. The Indians took the opener, 9-3.

Pitching: Ray Scarborough, Yankees—The veteran righthander, cast adrift by Boston a week ago, turned on his former teammates with a three-hitter as the Yankees defeated the Red Sox, 5-1, in the first night game ever played on Labor Day.

Giant Fathers

Boston, Sept. 2 (AP)—Two members of the New York Giants—Whitey Lockman and Alvin Dark—became the fathers of daughters over the weekend. Sue Lockman arrived in White Plains, N. Y., Sunday weighing eight pounds, two ounces. Adrienne Eve Dark, seven pounds, four ounces, arrived Friday night in Lake Charles, La.

Indians Sweep Series With Yanks to Win Esopus Little League Title

Israel Batting And Pitching Ace in 6-5 Win

Game Is Finished Under Protest

of Esopus Little League championship for 1952 with two straight victories over the Yankees in Port Ewen's Little World Series.

The second half winners stood off a determined sixth inning rally by the Yankees Sunday to eke out a 6-5 decision in a contest that was finished under protest.

The protest centered around an umpire's decision calling interference against a coach who allegedly interferred with a base runner.

A league official said this morning that so far as he was concerned the case was closed since it involved "an umpire's decision" backed up by the rule book.

Israel's Big Day

Josh Israel, the league's batting sensation, who had been hobbled in the series opener, took charge with a brilliant individual performance on Sunday.

He sparked two late Indian rallies that overcame a 2-1 Yank lead in the fifth and sixth with two singles and a homer and pitched four-hit ball, striking out 11 and walking six.

The Indians went ahead 4-2 in the fifth and led 6-2 when the Yankees came to bat for the last time.

Led by Israel the Indians collected 10 hits off Joe "Bolo" Beaver, the early-season strikeout sensation, and McIntosh. Beaver fanned seven.

Jay Van Loan had two singles and Willie Davis socked a single and double for the winners. Bob Short hit a single and double for the Yankees and Beaver pounded a triple and single.

The series concluded the first season of Little League activity in the Town of Esopus.

.22 Bullet Plus Water Equals Danger

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

In my very early teens I was introduced to some of the mysteries of shooting and fishing by a couple of very sharp old characters, woodsmen wise enough to educate us by practical example and demonstration.

To show us kids what a horrible ruction is created by high-speed sporting bullet, they didn't give us a book to read, but set up a water-filled kerosene can against a convenient sand bank and proceeded to explode it in all directions. Very effective.

But in our education on gun safety there was one danger, as I remember, that they didn't demonstrate. That job was done for them. My buddy and I were anchored off a point ducking shiners for smallmouth bass. We had heard some character popping away with a .22 a half mile across the lake, but the bass were swiping our minnows often cnough so we gave him no thought.

Apparently he shifted his target, perhaps to a floating bottle, and in quick succession he bounced two ricochets screaming over our heads. We quit fishing pronto, and before the hour was out our two teachers were buzzing across the lake in the kicker to explain the facts of shooting to our careless friends with the .22. After hearing those little .40-grain slugs battered out of shape when they hit the water, go yowling past us, we didn't need any explanation.

The warm weather months are the heydey of the kid with a rimfire, or the grown-up who pots away with a .22 rifle or pistol at any tin can, bottle, crow, or tree knot that jumps out at him. The plinker doesn't get the nswepaper or magazine space given to the rimfire target shooter, the gallery expert who does most of his competitive shooting indoors during the winter; but plinkers outnumber targeteers many times, buying millions more rimfire loads.

When the casual plinker gets into the news sheet, it's for potting somebody's cow or bouncing a ricochet where no bullet was meant to go.

The box your .22 long rifle cartridges are packed in, regardless of the make, is clearly marked: Dangerous Within One Mile. Neither high speeds nor standard velocity loads may reach quite that mile if you want to be real technical about it, but they'll come close to it—and if you shoot even a .22 bullet over water at such an angle that it ricochets off the surface nobody can predict how far or in what direction it's going to buzz off.

The Winchester-Western people have spent a lot of money studying the ricochet effects of the .22 long rifle bullet, using all manner of expensive, ultra-speed cameras and electronic gargets. They found that the exact range and direction of a .22 slug could be accurately predicted once it had touched a water surface—but they were cock certain, after the shooting was over, that a .22 long rifle bullet hitting the water at an angle of 15 degrees or less was definitely due to bounce off some place.

When you try to bust a bottle floating a hundred yards out on the lake, does the slug hit at less than 15 degrees? If the water is calm you bet your life it does. When you try such shenanigans you're risking the life of the people in the cottage by the point. But at your camp you shoot down into the water from a high bluff? That might be fine and dandy—maybe. What if there's a ripple on the water? What price a few degrees of wave slant then?

Water will stop bullets very effectively when they go straight into it. As I remember it, we were told during the last war that a swimmer being machine-gunned was safe three feet under from .30 calibre slugs and about six feet down from .50 calibre stuff. But how are you going to pile up water to serve as a backstop. On the flat, as it is when we shoot onto the lake it won't usually stop even a .22, but will start the slug in a brand new direction, perhaps a dangerously wrong one.

Ted Kroll Cops Insurance Open

Wethersfield, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—A determined and water-soaked Ted Kroll fought through the outer fringe of what remained of a tropical hurricane to capture the first annual $15,000 Insurance City Open golf tournament.

A four-under-par 31 for the front nine, which Kroll socked out before the fury of the storm caught up with him yesterday proved decisive as he sloshed through rain and wind in par 36 on the last nine for a 67 in the final round yesterday of the four-day 72-hole tourney.

The New Hartford, N. Y., star finished with a 273 total and top money of $2,400.

Trailing Skee Riegel by two strokes as the last round got underway yesterday, Kroll caught up with him with two successive birdies and then took the lead, which he never relinquished.

KAA All Stars Blast Saugerties, 16 to 8

The Labor Day rains wiped out the scheduled KAA Little League "Little World Series" opener between the Dodgers and Red Sox, but the league's all-star tournament squad drubbed Saugerties, 16 to 8, Saturday, to sweep the two-game series.

Tom Van Etten, Kingston's starting pitcher, led a 14- hit attack against two Saugerties pitcher with a double and three singles in a "4 for 4" performance.

The KAAs spotted the revenge-seeking Saugerties squad five runs in the first inning. They rallied for three in their half and at the end of three it was a 6-6 deadlock against Dick Elliott.

A seven-run rally in the fourth drove Elliott to cover and wiped out a two-run lead Saugerties picked up in the top of the frame. The KAAs pounded Barry Fellows, the relief flinger for three more runs in the fifth.

Newell Fans Five

Glenn Newell, the ace southpaw, pitched two sensational innings of relief in the fifth and sixth. He fanned five of the six men who faced him and displayed a sharp breaking curve for the first time this season.

Three other KAA players connected for two hits. Pete Esposito pounded a single and double. Tom Hallinan rapped two singles and Hobart Armstrong went "2 for 2" with a single and double.

Big Francis Kugleman, the Saugerties pitching ace who started twice with dire results against the KAAs in previous outings, played right field for the losers and bashed a single and homer. Barry Fellows had a two-bagger and a single for Saugerties.

The box your .22 long rifle cartridges are packed in, regardless of the make, is clearly marked: Dangerous Within One Mile. Neither high speeds nor standard velocity loads may reach quite that mile if you want to be real technical about it, but they'll come close to it—and if you shoot even a .22 bullet over water at such an angle that it ricochets off the surface nobody can predict how far or in what direction it's going to buzz off.

The Winchester-Western people have spent a lot of money studying the ricochet effects of the .22 long rifle bullet, using all manner of expensive, ultra-speed cameras and electronic gargets. They found that the exact range and direction of a .22 slug could be accurately predicted once it had touched a water surface—but they were cock certain, after the shooting was over, that a .22 long rifle bullet hitting the water at an angle of 15 degrees or less was definitely due to bounce off some place.

When you try to bust a bottle floating a hundred yards out on the lake, does the slug hit at less than 15 degrees? If the water is calm you bet your life it does. When you try such shenanigans you're risking the life of the people in the cottage by the point. But at your camp you shoot down into the water from a high bluff? That might be fine and dandy—maybe. What if there's a ripple on the water? What price a few degrees of wave slant then?

Water will stop bullets very effectively when they go straight into it. As I remember it, we were told during the last war that a swimmer being machine-gunned was safe three feet under from .30 calibre slugs and about six feet down from .50 calibre stuff. But how are you going to pile up water to serve as a backstop. On the flat, as it is when we shoot onto the lake it won't usually stop even a .22, but will start the slug in a brand new direction, perhaps a dangerously wrong one.

Ted Kroll Cops Insurance Open

Wethersfield, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—A determined and water-soaked Ted Kroll fought through the outer fringe of what remained of a tropical hurricane to capture the first annual $15,000 Insurance City Open golf tournament.

A four-under-par 31 for the front nine, which Kroll socked out before the fury of the storm caught up with him yesterday proved decisive as he sloshed through rain and wind in par 36 on the last nine for a 67 in the final round yesterday of the four-day 72-hole tourney.

The New Hartford, N. Y., star finished with a 273 total and top money of $2,400.

Trailing Skee Riegel by two strokes as the last round got underway yesterday, Kroll caught up with him with two successive birdies and then took the lead, which he never relinquished.

Toronto—Rev. Bob Richards, Laverne, Calif., broke the Canadian pole vault record for second time in three days in clearing bar at 15 feet 1⅛ inches.

KAA All Stars Blast Saugerties, 16 to 8

The Labor Day rains wiped out the scheduled KAA Little League "Little World Series" opener between the Dodgers and Red Sox, but the league's all-star tournament squad drubbed Saugerties, 16 to 8, Saturday, to sweep the two-game series.

Tom Van Etten, Kingston's starting pitcher, led a 14- hit attack against two Saugerties pitcher with a double and three singles in a "4 for 4" performance.

The KAAs spotted the revenge-seeking Saugerties squad five runs in the first inning. They rallied for three in their half and at the end of three it was a 6-6 deadlock against Dick Elliott.

A seven-run rally in the fourth drove Elliott to cover and wiped out a two-run lead Saugerties picked up in the top of the frame. The KAAs pounded Barry Fellows, the relief flinger for three more runs in the fifth.

Newell Fans Five

Glenn Newell, the ace southpaw, pitched two sensational innings of relief in the fifth and sixth. He fanned five of the six men who faced him and displayed a sharp breaking curve for the first time this season.

Three other KAA players connected for two hits. Pete Esposito pounded a single and double. Tom Hallinan rapped two singles and Hobart Armstrong went "2 for 2" with a single and double.

Big Francis Kugleman, the Saugerties pitching ace who started twice with dire results against the KAAs in previous outings, played right field for the losers and bashed a single and homer. Barry Fellows had a two-bagger and a single for Saugerties.

The Most Powerful Gasoline Your Car Can Use!

Get Activated!

Today's more powerful engines require a highly complex gasoline to deliver their full power. There can be as many as 1500 different chemical compounds in a gallon of gasoline.

To select the best of these chemicals, and to arrange them properly to fulfill the needs of your car calls for the last word in refinery equipment and scientific skill.

It is Shell's manufacturing policy to make "The most powerful gasoline your car can use." Shell activates gasoline by splitting and rearranging petroleum molecules.

The result—Shell Premium—the most powerful gasoline your car can use. See the Shell Dealer in your neighborhood.

Hull Condition Still Is Serious

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Cordell Hull remained on the critical list today at the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital. Officials said he spent a good night and that his condition was listed as unchanged.

The 80-year-old former secre- of state entered the hospital in the Washington suburbs Friday for treatment for cerebral thrombosis.

There was a false alarm yesterday that Hull had died. President Truman received a report, presumably from the White House, that the elder statesman who served in President Roosevelt's cabinet for three terms had died.

The President, travelling on a campaign train en route to Milwaukee, got out a statement in Chicago saying "the people of the United States join with me in mourning the passing of one of this country's greatest statesmen, Cordell Hull."

Report in Error

Not long afterwards, however, it developed that the report of Hull's death had been in error.

The President put out a second statement at Milwaukee in which he said: "I am most pleased to learn that I was falsely informed that Cordell Hull had passed away."

White House aides said today a transmission error was responsible for the false report.

The aides said that all of the messages on Hull's condition were correct as they left the White House yesterday but that one was garbled in transmission over the President's regular message facilities.

What's in a Thimble

'Tis said the thimble was invented in Holland about 1100 and originally was called a "thumbbell" because it was worn on the thumb. Early thimbles were made of leather, bone or metal. In Elizabethan days thimbles were silver and gold in England, porcelain in France.

House Operator Gives Testimony

Hudson, Sept. 2 (AP)—A convicted bawdy house operator testified today before an extraordinary grand jury probing for links between Hudson police and prostitution.

Two policemen and two ex-cops also testified briefly at a two-hour session of the state-ordered jury investigating vice and crime in Columbia county. The nature of the testimony was not disclosed.

The jury concentrated for an hour today on the testimony of Vera Faith, also known as Veronica Werner, who was convicted in June, 1950, of operating a house of prostitution.

Other witnesses were Sgt. William Egan and Patrolman Joseph Arkinson of the Hudson police department and former policemen Arthur Finch and Jesse Haight. Finch resigned from the force last Jan. 28 and Haight retired the same day.

Thomas Mason, chief assistant prosecutor, said the jury was "continuing its investigation into the connection between prostitution in Hudson two years ago."

After hearing the five witnesses, the jury adjourned until next Tuesday.

Customer Was Satisfied

Larned, Kas., Sept. 2 (AP)—An elderly man didn't like any of the shoes shown to him in a store here but as he was leaving he noticed those worn by another customer, Chester Crane. He asked to let him try them on. Crane consented. The result: Crane walked out in a new pair of shoes paid for by the elderly man, and the latter walked out in Crane's slightly-worn, comfortably broken-in shoes.

Thrusts Are Repulsed

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 2 (AP)—U. N. infantrymen today repulsed three light Chinese thrusts against Allied defenses in the Old Baldy and Bunker-Siberia Hill sectors on the Korean western front. Chinese soldiers showed continuing interest in the battle-scarred terrain won in recent weeks by U. S. troops in especially bitter fighting.

Plans Are Canceled For Anniversary Program Sept. 10th

A combination of circumstances has caused Kingston's 300th Anniversary group to cancel plans for a program on September 10. An appropriate ceremony to celebrate the 175th anniversary of the founding of the state government here was to be one of the featured events of the year-long program of activities.

When the time arrived to make definite plans, the sponsors found that the three key persons, whom they had hoped would be present and participate, could not attend the September 10 rites.

Under date of August 21, a letter from R. Burdell Bixby, executive assistant to Governor Thomas E. Dewey, which contained the following paragraph; "The Governor had very much hoped that it would be possible for him to attend the ceremonies, but as his schedule is now worked out, the pressure of his engagements is so great during the month of September that it will be impossible for him to come to Kingston."

Chief Judge John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals will be on his way to San Francisco to preside at a meeting of the National Chief Justices Association of which he is president, and recently it was announced that Senator Arthur H. Wicks, now finds it absolutely necessary to be out of the city on September 9, 10, and 11.

At first the possibility of changing the date was considered, but this caused other complications. "It was with great reluctance that the program for September 10, has been canceled," Stanley J. Matthews, president of the 300th Anniversary group, stated today when he made the announcement, and concluded, "We realize that a great deal of publicity has been given the September 10 date, but the cancellation was unavoidable.

Praise for Madame Curie

Aug. 25, 1952
349 Clifton avenue
Kingston, N. Y.

Editor, The Freeman:

Madame Curie who, with her husband, discovered radium—one of the greatest achievements in scientific history—refused to patent the process to produce radium. The idea of making money from radium never entered their minds. Madame Curie said, "It would be contrary to a scientific spirit."

This was a noble thought expressed at a time when she was very poor but she placed a greater value on her experiments, as well as her husband, who worked with her. They were denied the support which they deserved, the vast, seemingly endless experiments being consummated in a laboratory that was hardly more than a shed. Madame Curie was not financially able to hire anyone to do the rough work but she herself took care of the fire, shovelling tons of pitchblende ore, which was the process of extracting the tiny molecule of radium.

There isn't any question as to their fame as benefactors of the human race. It was Marie and Pierre Curie who revealed to humanity that the heavier elements were radioactive. This discovery gave physicists and chemists a key with which to unlock the mysteries of the nature of other chemical elements.

I don't believe we can deny that our modern atomic physics began with this discovery of radium. Certain deposits in our state of Colorado consist of radium but the Belgian Congo has the richer deposits, aside from Great Bear Lake on the Canadian Arctic Circle which are the world's richest deposits.

In closing this article I can only utter the words of Dr. Albert Einstein in tribute to Madame Curie, "The celebrated being, the one whom fame has not corrupted."

Sincerely yours,
EDWIN J. HIGBY.

Hull Condition Still Is Serious

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Cordell Hull remained on the critical list today at the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital. Officials said he spent a good night and that his condition was listed as unchanged.

The 80-year-old former secretary of state entered the hospital in the Washington suburbs Friday for treatment for cerebral thrombosis.

There was a false alarm yesterday that Hull had died. President Truman received a report, presumably from the White House, that the elder statesman who served in President Roosevelt's cabinet for three terms had died.

The President, travelling on a campaign train en route to Milwaukee, got out a statement in Chicago saying "the people of the United States join with me in mourning the passing of one of this country's greatest statesmen, Cordell Hull."

Report in Error

Not long afterwards, however, it developed that the report of Hull's death had been in error.

The President put out a second statement at Milwaukee in which he said: "I am most pleased to learn that I was falsely informed that Cordell Hull had passed away."

White House aides said today a transmission error was responsible for the false report.

The aides said that all of the messages on Hull's condition were correct as they left the White House yesterday but that one was garbled in transmission over the President's regular message facilities.

What's in a Thimble

'Tis said the thimble was invented in Holland about 1100 and originally was called a "thumbbell" because it was worn on the thumb. Early thimbles were made of leather, bone or metal. In Elizabethan days thimbles were silver and gold in England, porcelain in France.

GETS THE BLUES — Lady Marines now wear their own dress blues for the first time in Marine Corps history. Designed by Mainbocher, the snappy two-piece dark blue uniform jacket nips in at the waist, has traditional scarlet piping on collar and shoulders. Three gold buttons decorate cuffs, gold and scarlet sleeve insignia designate rank. Ascot tie and blue cap complete the outfit which will only be worn on dress occasions.

House Operator Gives Testimony

Hudson, Sept. 2 (AP)—A convicted bawdy house operator testified today before an extraordinary grand jury probing for links between Hudson police and prostitution.

Two policemen and two ex-cops also testified briefly at a two-hour session of the state-ordered jury investigating vice and crime in Columbia county. The nature of the testimony was not disclosed.

The jury concentrated for an hour today on the testimony of Vera Faith, also known as Veronica Werner, who was convicted in June, 1950, of operating a house of prostitution.

Other witnesses were Sgt. William Egan and Patrolman Joseph Arkinson of the Hudson police department and former policemen Arthur Finch and Jesse Haight. Finch resigned from the force last Jan. 28 and Haight retired the same day.

Thomas Mason, chief assistant prosecutor, said the jury was "continuing its investigation into the connection between prostitution in Hudson two years ago."

After hearing the five witnesses, the jury adjourned until next Tuesday.

Customer Was Satisfied

Larned, Kas., Sept. 2 (AP)—An elderly man didn't like any of the shoes shown to him in a store here but as he was leaving he noticed those worn by another customer, Chester Crane. He asked to let him try them on. Crane consented. The result: Crane walked out in a new pair of shoes paid for by the elderly man, and the latter walked out in Crane's slightly-worn, comfortably broken-in shoes.

Thrusts Are Repulsed

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 2 (AP)—U. N. infantrymen today repulsed three light Chinese thrusts against Allied defenses in the Old Baldy and Bunker-Siberia Hill sectors on the Korean western front. Chinese soldiers showed continuing interest in the battle-scarred terrain won in recent weeks by U. S. troops in especially bitter fighting.

American Indians enjoyed roasted crickets, as well as the queens of leaf-cutting ants.

Plans Are Canceled For Anniversary Program Sept. 10th

A combination of circumstances has caused Kingston's 300th Anniversary group to cancel plans for a program on September 10. An appropriate ceremony to celebrate the 175th anniversary of the founding of the state government here was to be one of the featured events of the year-long program of activities.

When the time arrived to make definite plans, the sponsors found that the three key persons, whom they had hoped would be present and participate, could not attend the September 10 rites.

Under date of August 21, a letter from R. Burdell Bixby, executive assistant to Governor Thomas E. Dewey, which contained the following paragraph; "The Governor had very much hoped that it would be possible for him to attend the ceremonies, but as his schedule is now worked out, the pressure of his engagements is so great during the month of September that it will be impossible for him to come to Kingston."

Chief Judge John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals will be on his way to San Francisco to preside at a meeting of the National Chief Justices Association of which he is president, and recently it was announced that Senator Arthur H. Wicks, now finds it absolutely necessary to be out of the city on September 9, 10, and 11.

At first the possibility of changing the date was considered, but this caused other complications. "It was with great reluctance that the program for September 10, has been canceled," Stanley J. Matthews, president of the 300th Anniversary group, stated today when he made the announcement, and concluded, "We realize that a great deal of publicity has been given the September 10 date, but the cancellation was unavoidable.

Praise for Madame Curie

Aug. 25, 1952
349 Clifton avenue
Kingston, N. Y.

Editor, The Freeman:

Madame Curie who, with her husband, discovered radium—one of the greatest achievements in scientific history—refused to patent the process to produce radium. The idea of making money from radium never entered their minds. Madame Curie said, "It would be contrary to a scientific spirit."

This was a noble thought expressed at a time when she was very poor but she placed a greater value on her experiments, as well as her husband, who worked with her. They were denied the support which they deserved, the vast, seemingly endless experiments being consummated in a laboratory that was hardly more than a shed. Madame Curie was not financially able to hire anyone to do the rough work but she herself took care of the fire, shovelling tons of pitchblende ore, which was the process of extracting the tiny molecule of radium.

There isn't any question as to their fame as benefactors of the human race. It was Marie and Pierre Curie who revealed to humanity that the heavier elements were radioactive. This discovery gave physicists and chemists a key with which to unlock the mysteries of the nature of other chemical elements.

I don't believe we can deny that our modern atomic physics began with this discovery of radium. Certain deposits in our state of Colorado consist of radium but the Belgian Congo has the richer deposits, aside from Great Bear Lake on the Canadian Arctic Circle which are the world's richest deposits.

In closing this article I can only utter the words of Dr. Albert Einstein in tribute to Madame Curie, "The celebrated being, the one whom fame has not corrupted."

Sincerely yours,
EDWIN J. HIGBY.

Five Dollars Buys School

THERE'S 100 YEARS BETWEEN BITES—The youngster and the oldster above are far apart in time and space, but they both have the same idea—digging into their birthday cakes. At left, one-year-old Ornella (last name unknown) sits in her Rome, Italy, home, with her one-candled birthday cake, prepared to express her own ideas on how it should be eaten. A few thousand miles away, in Jacksonville, Fla., Thomas Morgan takes a big bite of the cake celebrating his 101st birthday. Morgan, raised on a Wisconsin farm, became an engineer at 35 and arrived in Chicago to see the first electric street lights installed. A Jacksonville resident for the past 28 years, he attended Sunday church services regularly until six months ago.

Crime Confession Related

Fond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 2 (AP)—A 24-year-old machinist has admitted, police said, the fatal beating of an attractive telephone operator two weeks ago. William Gardner said in a signed statement that he had used an automobile lug wrench to batter the head of Agnes Jaeger, 24, in the predawn of Aug. 16. The statement gave no motive for the slaying. Gardner had told authorities earlier he had picked up Miss Jaeger and a girl companion at a tavern and said he had given them a ride home. The companion did not know of Miss Jaeger's death until morning.
